I N T R O D U C T I O N

Several months ago one of my nephews who had named a child, MacFarlane, asked me some questions about the MacFarlane family, and I was surprised to realize how little I knew about the family, though my mother was a MacFarlane.

The homes of the MacFarlanes were located in Muscogee and Harris Counties, a short distance above Upatoi, Georgia. This is a station of the Central of Georgia Railway and on Highway No. 80 about 15 miles east of Columbus, Georgia. I was astounded to learn that the original MacFarlane homestead was only about a mile and a half or two miles from Upatoi, and that I had passed along on the trains or in cars all during the years in going to and from Columbus.

Another very great surprise to me was that I found it to be one of the prettiest places I had ever seen. While there have been a good many changes and considerable money spent on a new building as well as shrubs and flowers, with the old original MacFarlane house rolled intact down the hill for several hundred feet; at the same time, the general aspect of the place with its fine grove of trees and the woods behind the house and the magnificent view in front is all the same.

The place is now known as "White Oak Ranch" and is owned by Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Salter. Mr. Salter is in business in Columbus and commutes to this beautiful place. Mrs. Salter was most gracious in showing me the place and giving me what information she could. She showed me the original land grant of the State of Georgia made on July 9, 1827 by Governor George M. Troup which conveyed the property to Daniel Zorn. This grant with the original seal of the state has been framed to hang in the Salter's living-room.

On August 2, 1827, Daniel Zorn conveyed this property to Stephen Mattock. Stephen Mattock by warranty deed dated November 2, 1829, recorded March 11, 1830, in Deed Book A, folios 227 and 228, conveyed this property to Charles MacFarlane. On January 4, 1841, Charles MacFarlane conveyed all of lot of land No. 32 in the 18th District of Muscogee County, Georgia, the home place, to W. W. MacFarlane, together with what seems to have been 1,634 acres in the plantation.

This property remained in the hands of Charles MacFarlane and his oldest son, William W. MacFarlane and his descendants from November 2, 1829 until November 6, 1928, a period of ninety-nine years and four days, when it was conveyed to C. W. Buck. C. W. Buck conveyed the property to Abe Straus. Abe Straus conveyed it to E. D. Martin and E. D. Martin to W. G. Salter, the present owner.

The original MacFarlane home was probably the nicest house in that whole section at the time it was built and after nearly a hundred years is in good repair and free from termites. It is occupied by the farm superintendent.

A short distance north of this MacFarlane plantation is the line between Muscogee and Harris Counties and is known as the County Line Road. North of this County Line Road Isaac Barnett MacFarlane, the second son of Charles MacFarlane, built a nice two-story log house. This house burned after his death on September 11, 1867, and nothing now remains except the old carriage house across the road in front.

Isaac Barnett MacFarlane, returning from Columbus late one afternoon, attempted to cross the flooded waters of the MacFarlane Creek near the MacFarlane Cemetery. The horse was drowned and the buggy was destroyed, and in floating down the creek he was able to grab an overhead limb and to climb out to the bank. However, a short time afterwards he died of pneumonia caused from shock and exposure as well as swallowing sand. I have heard my mother tell this and Mr. William T. McKee, a friend of the family now well advanced in years, recalls his father telling him about the accident. Mr. McKee lives in an imposing residence at Midland, Georgia, and owns the Isaac MacFarlane lands.

Speaking of these flooded streams in that vicinity, reminds me that when my father, A. C. Felton, went over to Upatoi to marry my mother, he could not reach the home until the creek waters subsided and consequently was late at the appointed hour for the wedding. All the household seemed to be very much perturbed except my mother, who said she knew he would show up. Adding further to his embarrassment, he was called upon to say grace at the wedding supper and to which he was not exactly accustomed. He started off "Our Father, who art in heaven," but caught himself in time and wound up in a very proper manner. When the happy couple returned from their bridal trip to his home in Montezuma, all the boys there claimed that he said, "Now I lay me down to sleep".

The MacFarlane Cemetery is located on the original MacFarlane land and was on this County Line Road, but in later years the road has been slightly changed and paved. In this cemetery are buried Charles MacFarlane and his wife, Sallie Barnett, as well as their three sons and their wives, W. W. MacFarlane, his wife and several children, Isaac Barnett MacFarlane and his wife, and the other brother, John R. MacFarlane and his wife. There were no slabs or markers on the graves of the above mentioned except W. W. MacFarlane, his wife and children, so I have had the proper monuments and markers put up this year, June, 1953, on the graves of Charles MacFarlane and Sallie Barnett, Isaac MacFarlane and Elizabeth Heard and John R. MacFarlane and Frances L. Smith.

I have attempted to present the record of these different families, especially with reference to the vital statistics of each member as far as is possible. The different members of the MacFarlane families that I have called on for information have been most co-operative and I wish to thank all of them and especially,

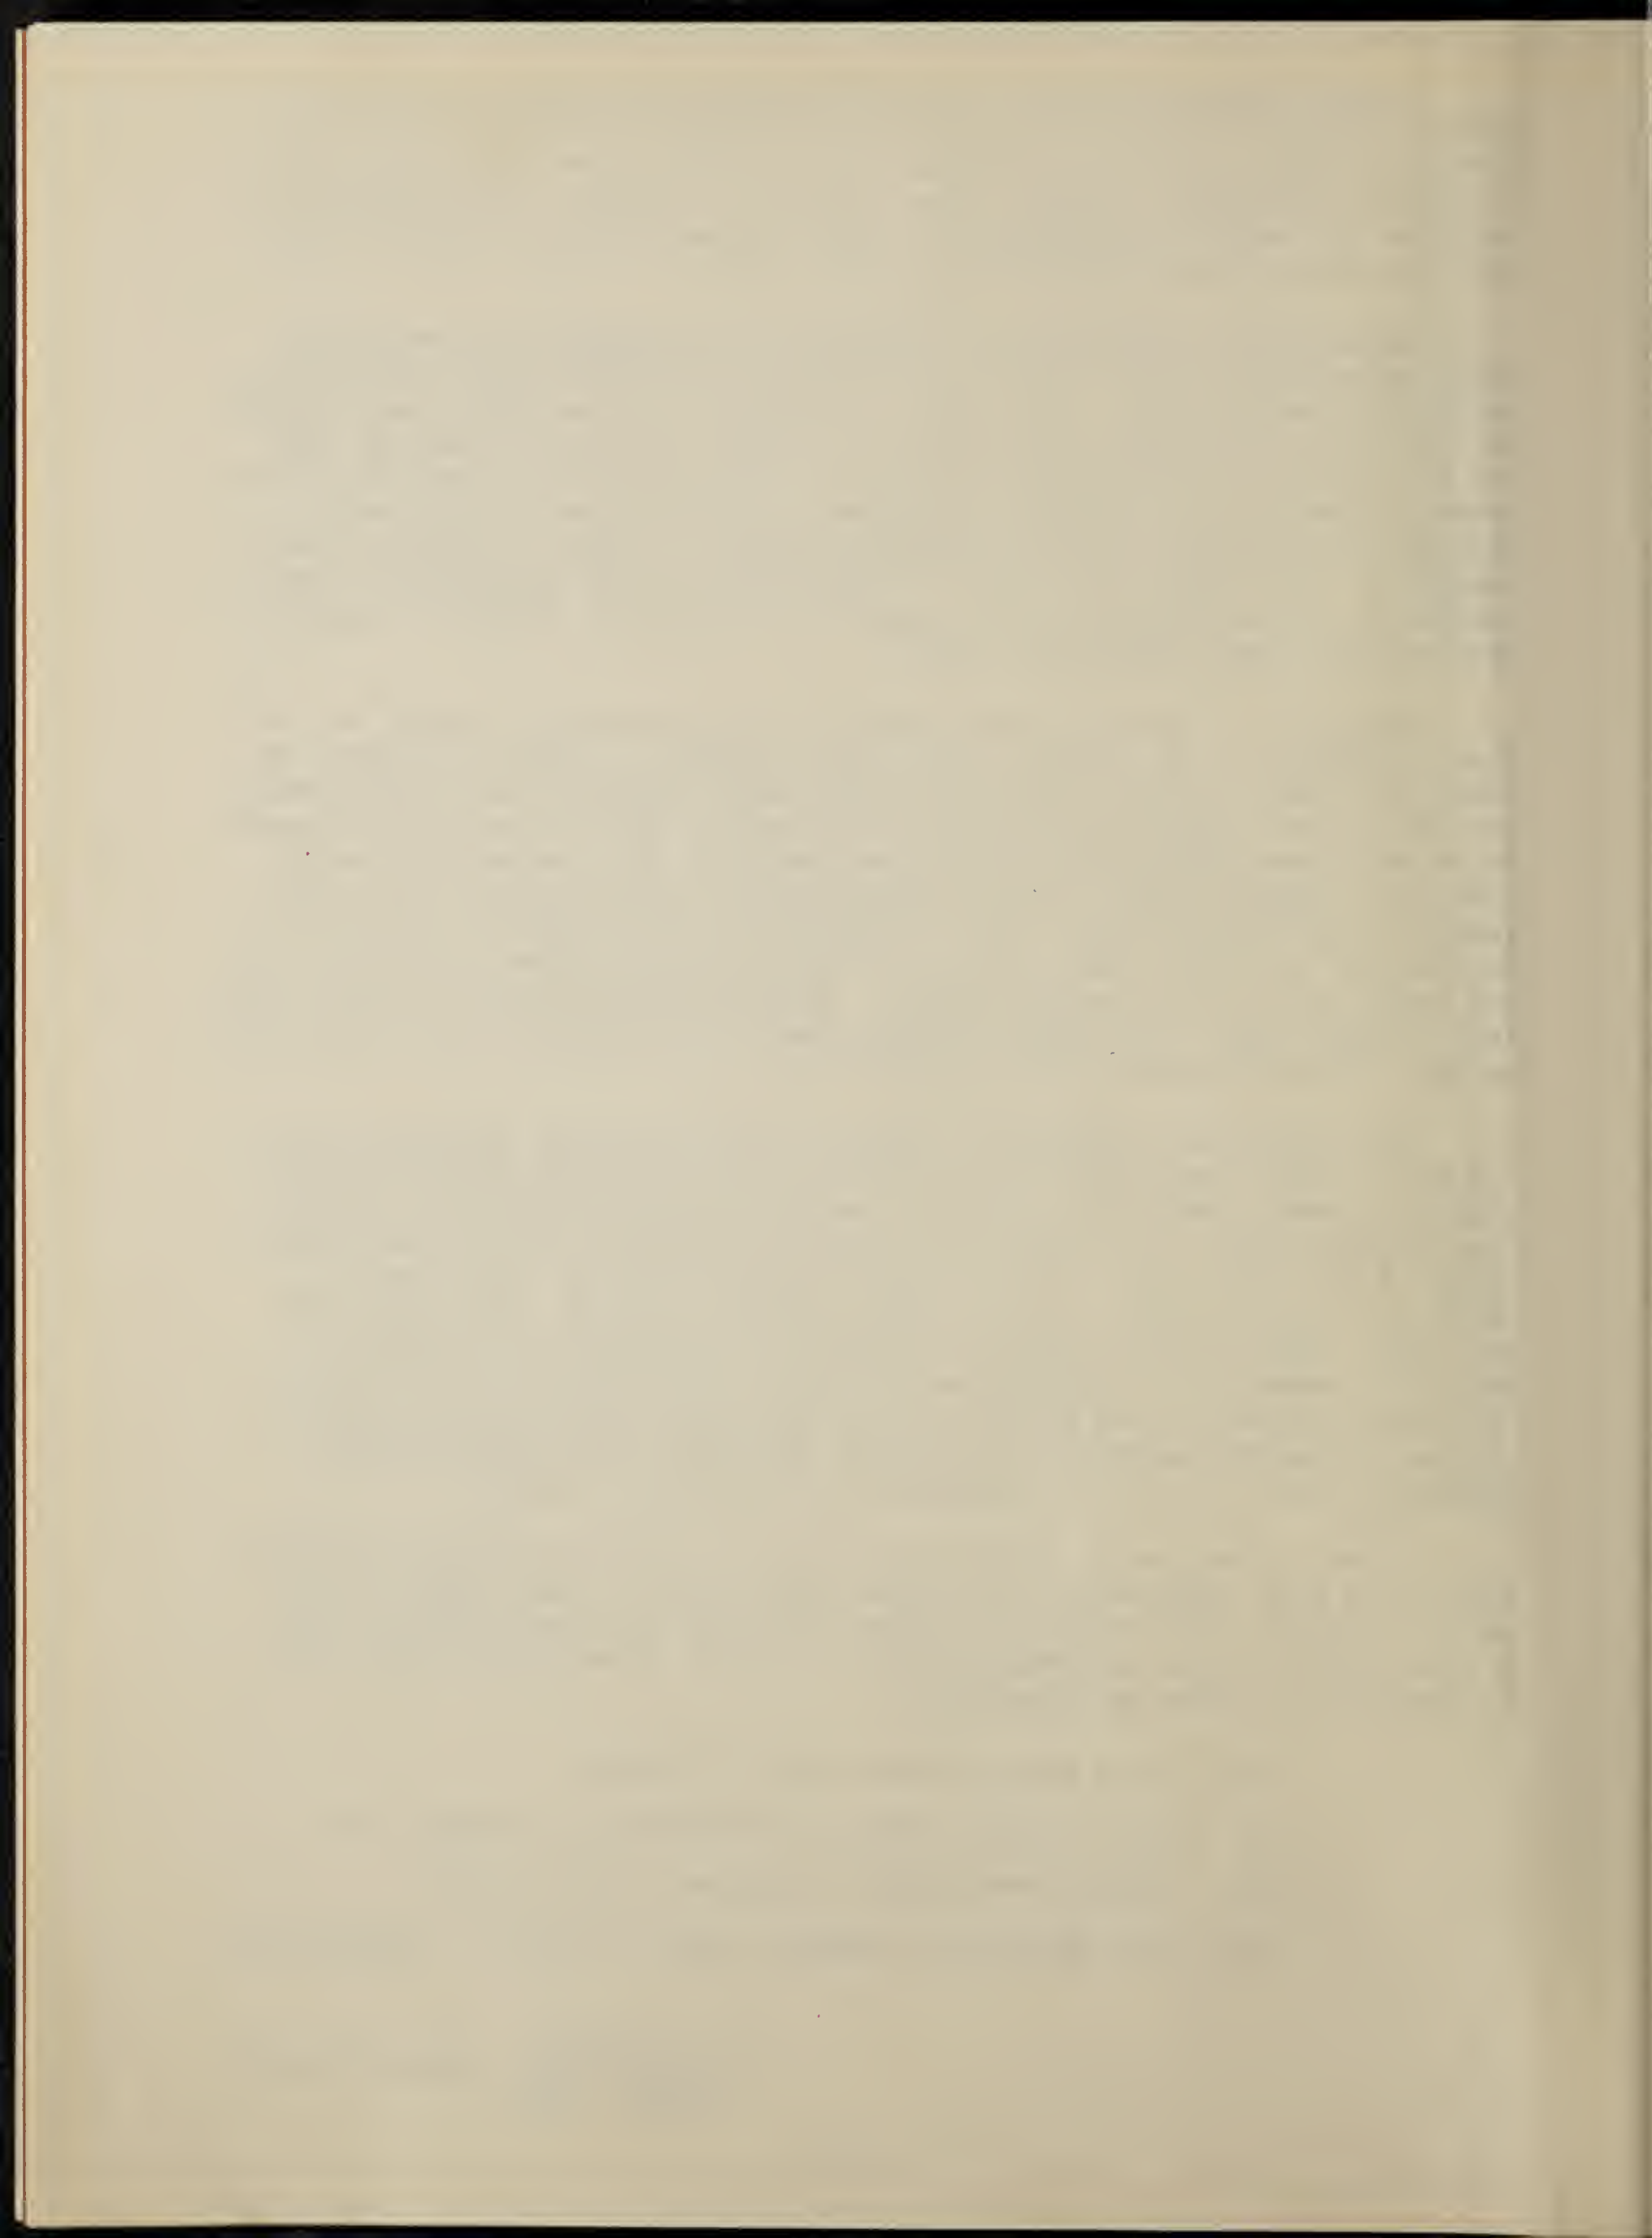

Miss Sallie Fannie Evans, Seale, Alabama

Mrs. Louise Herndon Cumbaa, 806 23rd St., Columbus, Ga.

THE MACFARLANE FAMILY

Charles MacFarlane - 1790 - 1843 - and his two brothers came from the Lake Regions of Scotland to America with an uncle. The uncle settled either in Wilmington, Delaware or in Maryland.

One of the three brothers became a doctor and went to New York State where he practiced medicine.

A second brother went to western Pennsylvania and disappeared.

Charles MacFarlane's mother in Scotland is said to have been a Wright and to have had a brother named Caleb Wright.

Charles MacFarlane came from Virginia to Wilkes County, Georgia where he met and married Sallie Barnett 1793-1860.

Sallie Barnett's mother was a Miss Love and there were five sisters:

(A Mrs. Fielder of Oplika, Alabama is Oppy Barnett's great, granddaughter).

John R. MacFarlane, born in 1817, died January 22, 1856 married Frances L. Smith

Their respective families and descendants are shown from Charles MacFarlane to David Louis Smith, born October 6, 1953, and who received the $50.00 U. S. Savings Bond for being the youngest descendant reported. His genealogy is as follows:

The following is quoted from the Columbus paper at the time of his death:

Dr. Isaac Evans

"The death Friday night of Dr. Isaac Cuthbert Evans removed from the life of the community one of its highly revered and popular citizens who will be greatly missed and long remembered.

As city physician for one term, county physician for two, city alderman for two, and then registrar of vital statistics, Dr. Evans made a splendid record as a public official, serving the city well in all capacities. His public service, although a number of years ago, is still vividly remembered most favorably by many of our citizens.

Ben Holland Jennings lives in Mobile, Alabama, and works for Government Engineering Department. He graduated from Auburn in 1936 and later attended a business college in Nashville, Tennessee.

Ann E. Ruth Jennings went to Martha Washington College at Abington, Virginia, and then to Alabama College at Montevallo, Alabama.

Ben Jennings ran the principal store in Seale, Alabama, for thirty-four years and his son, Glenn, continued it in the same location for an additional forty-eight years. That store is an old land-mark.

In the summer afternoons in the shaded space in front of the store, people would gather to play checkers or discuss politics. One afternoon the doctor came by and casually said, "Ben, I've been out to your farm today." The reply was, "Yes, I 'lowed you had-- they sent in for a coffin."

Notes: John Smith Matthews

When Miss Sallie Fannie Evans of Seale, Alabama, wrote that Mr. Matthews was "the finest Christian character that she had ever met", she expressed the universal esteem in which he was held by his friends.

ISAAC BARNETT MACFARLANE

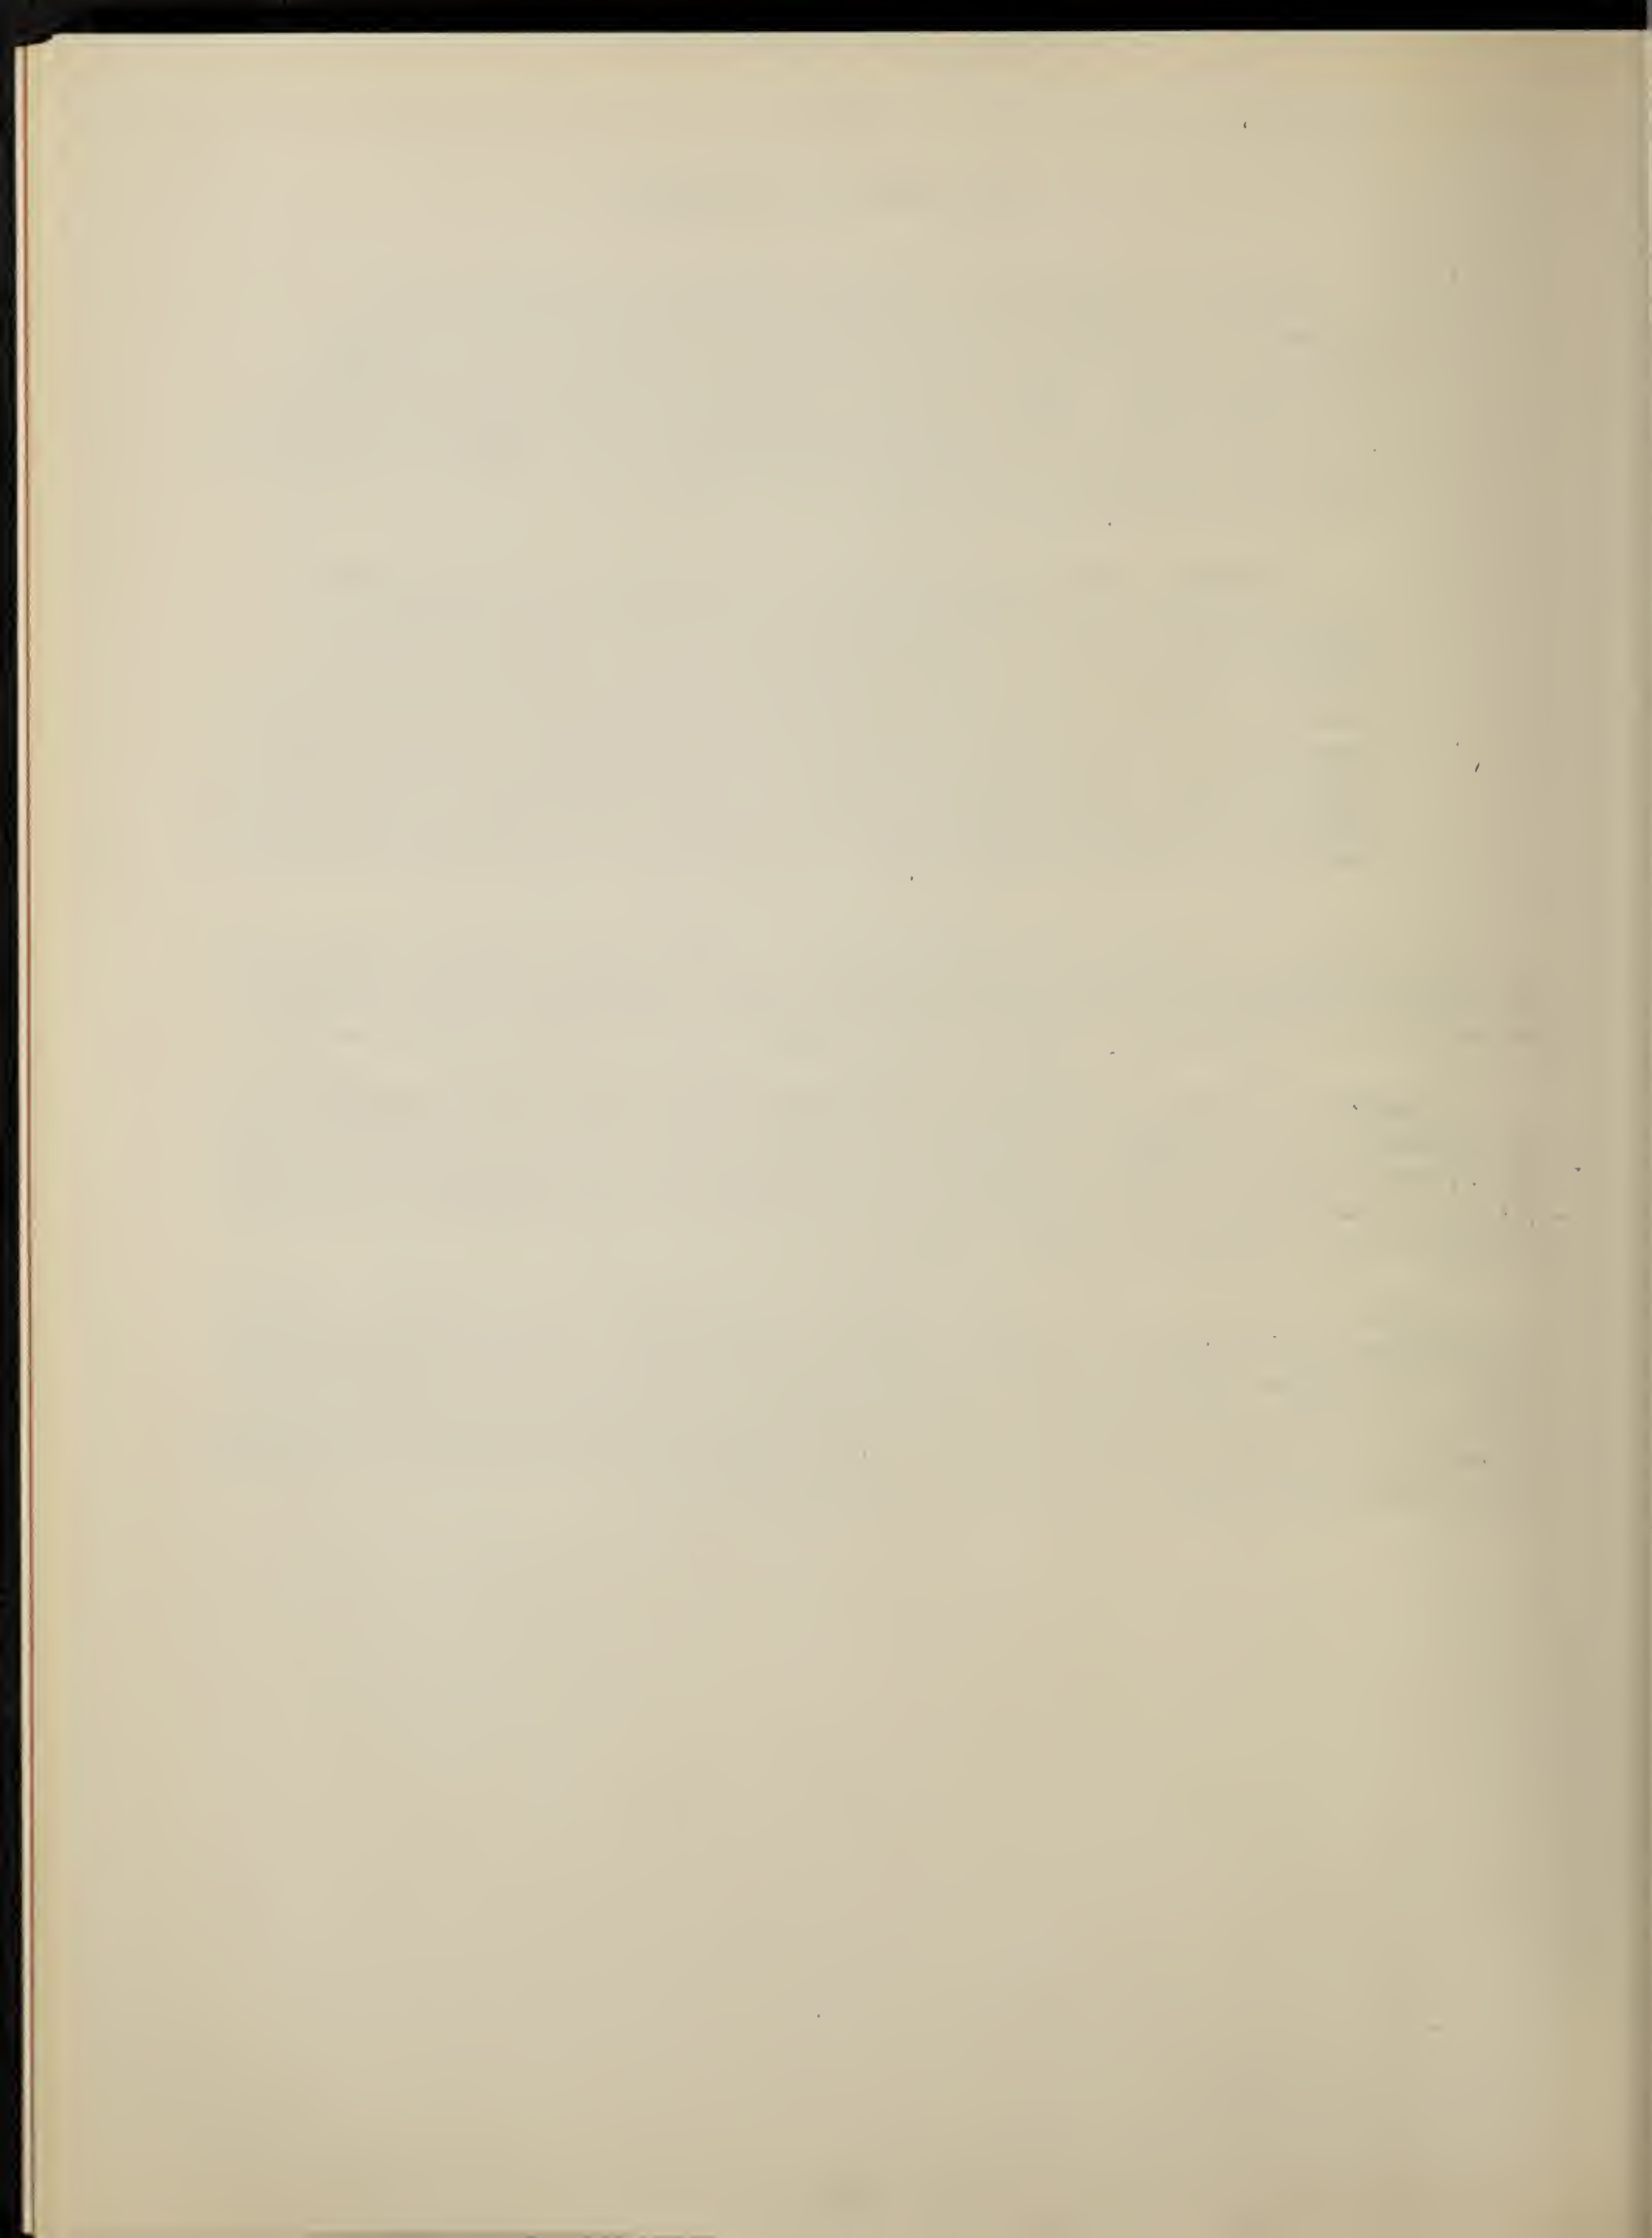

He was in business for several years principally as a cotton buyer until he was elected City Treasurer of Columbus, Georgia, which office he held for a little more than 27 years till his death. The following is quoted from the Resolution by the City Council of Columbus not because it is simply a perfunctory custom but because it so beautifully and clearly describes the esteem in which he was held:

"WHEREAS, John S. Matthews, for a little more than twenty-seven years, the honored Treasurer of the City of Columbus, departed this life on May 26, 1917, in his seventy-first year. He was a devoted husband, a loving father, a true christian, a model citizen, a warm friend and a faithful and efficient official; therefore be it resolved, that by his death this city has lost a valued and esteemed public servant; one whose generous disposition, frank and courteous manner will ever keep his memory fresh in the hearts of those who knew him. We shall miss his cordial greetings."

Mr. Thomas J. Pearce, born September 25, 1849, died April 7, 1912, and his wife, Virginia Biggers, born March 27, 1847, died March 17, 1934, the parents of Dr. Haywood J. Pearce were both buried at Gainesville, Georgia.

Haywood J. Pearce, husband of Mamie Matthews, went from Columbus, Ga., to Gainesville, Georgia, in May 1893 to take charge of what was then called the Georgia Baptist Female Seminary. He reorganized and renamed the institution, Brenau College, and served as its President from 1893 to his death in May 1943, a period of fifty years.

Haywood J. Pearce Jr., after service in World War I, overseas, served as Professor of History at Brenau College, 1919-1936; Vice President, 1928-1936. He joined the Emory University faculty as Professor of American History in 1936 and served on that faculty until 1946 (five years on leave of absence for service in World War II). He joined the faculty of the Michigan State Normal College in 1946 and now serves there.

ISAAC BARNETT MACFARLANE

Augustus C. Felton, Sr. was the son of Shadrach R. Felton by his second wife, Lavinia Young. His father died when he was three years old and he had several guardians, among them his mother's brothers, Cicero H. Young and Dr. Ellis R. Young. His mother seemed very persevering in keeping him in school in Talbotton, Americus and Thomasville. While in Thomasville he was invited to spend the week-ends at "Greenwood", the home of his great aunt, Mrs. Lavinia Young Jones, and which was a wonderful treat to a homesick schoolboy. He went to Mercer University and graduated in 1869, the year before Mercer was moved from Penfield, Georgia to Macon. As a consequence, he was one of the best educated and best read men of the community. He could read Latin almost as well as English.

Until labor left the farms for the industrial centers, he was a farmer. In fact, while thoroughly practical, he was a scientific farmer and used on the farm practically all modern methods now used, such as terracing, plowing crops on contour, rotating crops and planting legumes such as peas and crimson clover. He used all modern machinery that was horse drawn as there were then no tractors. He had permanent pastures and fish ponds and I asked a farmer friend recently why it was that my father did not raise beef cattle. His reply was that it was because there was no market for the cattle as there were no packing houses or refrigeration.

He engaged in business in Montezuma after he quit farming and for the last twenty-five years of his life, he was Ordinary of Macon County.

Augustus C. Felton, Jr. graduated at Gordon Institute at Barnesville, Georgia, in 1889 and went into the fertilizer business in Macon immediately. When the trusts came along and bought out various fertilizer plants, he became Vice-President of the Massee-Felton Lumber Company, in charge of the saw mills in South Georgia. There he built and operated two small railroads, the Nashville and Sparks and the Pelham and Havanna. After the yellow pine forests were cut over, he established in 1913 the Nye Odorless Incinerator Company which built over three hundred municipal incinerators throughout the United States, including such cities as New York, Chicago suburban towns, Portland, Oregon, Los Angeles, California, Houston, Texas, Jacksonville and Miami, Florida, Norfolk, Virginia, Huntington, West Virginia, etc.

In 1896 he married Miss Hattie Dawkins Cleveland of Wartrace, Tenn. and they took a two months bridal trip through the West. Later they made three trips to Europe, two to Havanna, Cuba and two to Canada. In the incinerator business, it was necessary for him to go practically all over the country and in one year went to California three times, Miami a half-dozen times and to New York nearly as many times.

ISAAC BARNETT MACFARLANE

Charles Lawrence Andrews was born at LaFayette, Alabama, November 7, 1891. His first business experience was in the cotton business and which has always been his principal business. He has been located at Montgomery, Ala., Macon, Georgia, Marietta, Georgia, and has been in Memphis, Tennessee since 1921. He has made a specialty of certain types of cotton and is considered an authority on such types. He is a member of different cotton organizations and is one of the largest and most successful operators on Front Street, Memphis, Tennessee. He is active in civic and church matters. The following is his war record: Volunteered for first officers training camp in 1916 and was sent to Fort McPherson. After three months was commissioned second Lieutenant in Field Artillery at Camp Gordon. Helped organize the 82nd Division and was assigned to 157 Brigade of Field Artillery. Was sent to France in the spring of 1917 and throughout the war was ammunition officer. The 82nd Division was in reserve at Chateau Thierry, later fought at St. Mihiel and in Argonne. This division held the open valley of Aire River as their part of the front, and probably had more casualties than any other division in that area of fighting. He returned to the United States in the spring of 1919 and was mustered out at Camp Upton, New York.

Augustus Felton Andrews graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1950 and took a course in textiles at Clemson College, South Carolina before going into the cotton business with his father. He enlisted in the Air Corps October 1, 1950 and his services have been as follows: He was sent to several air bases in Texas, Biloxi, Miss. and Albuquerque, New Mexico where he took training in advanced radar and some confidential form of atomic energy. In April, 1952, he was sent to Fairford Base near Cheltenham, England. He was offered a commission as lieutenant while at Albuquerque but declined it. He expects to receive his discharge in August of 1954. While located at Albuquerque he married Miss Barbara Jeane O'Conner of San Francisco in 1952.

Andrew Bradley Hallum spent his early life in Carrollton, Georgia, graduated at Ames University in Wisconsin, and attended the Harvard Business School near Boston. He had experience in different lines of business and settled in the retail furniture business in Dayton, Ohio. He seems to have struck there at the psychological time on account of the various industries there with their big pay-rolls. He has been unusually successful and has a profitable business.

Augustus Felton Hallum graduated from Perdue University at LaFayette, Indiana. He entered the war services before finishing school and was located in a camp near Atlanta for some time and was sent to Korea to spend a year in Seoul. When he finished college he worked in the timber and sawmill business in Oregon, came back to LaFayette, Indiana to marry Miss Marjorie Robertson and they now live in Denver, Colorado.

Jule Felton graduated in Law at Mercer University in 1893, took law under Dr. Minor at The University of Virginia and read law under Mr. Olin J. Wimberly, a prominent Macon Attorney; and he was admitted to the Bar as the youngest lawyer ever admitted to the Bar in Georgia up to that time. Thus well equipped and with plenty of energy and determination, he developed into a wonderful lawyer. It was said of him that he was on one side or the other of every important case that came up in his section. He was Solicitor General for several years with courts at Oglethorpe, Americus, Lumpkin, etc.

He married Miss Mamie Robinson on November 27, 1897 and they were blessed with six children. Their 50th wedding anniversary, celebrated in 1947 at the Country Club at Montezuma, was a brilliant affair. In the receiving line with the parents were the two charming daughters, Frances and Mary and the four handsome sons, all over six feet tall. The attractive daughters-in-law assisted in entertaining the crowd of several hundred people and served punch and refreshments. The invitations and decorations in the club were gotten up by Frances Felton, who is quite an artist. This golden wedding was quite a notable event.

He was active in all church matters and taught a Sunday School Class for fifty years. He was enthusiastic over tithing and was invited to make talks on tithing in various places around the state.

ISAAC BARNETT MACFARLANE

Jule Wimberly Felton attended Emory University for two years and Mercer University two years and graduated in Literature and Law at Mercer in 1919 with first honor in Law. He was Mayor of Montezuma for several years. He was first appointed and then elected to the Public Service Commission for the five-year unexpired term of Calvin W. Parker.

He was elected to the Court of Appeals in 1936. His first term of six years began January 1, 1937 and he has had no opposition for the last two terms. He resides in Atlanta, Georgia.

Augustus C. Felton, III, attended the University of Virginia for one year and graduated in Law at Mercer University in 1928. He joined his father's law firm in Montezuma and since his father's death has succeeded to that law business. He is Mayor of Montezuma and is active in all civic matters.

William Robinson Felton graduated from the University of Georgia, studied law a year at Emory University as additional business equipment. He was with the Coca Cola Company for several years, first as manager of the Middle Western Bottling Business with headquarters in Chicago. He was one of the Vice-Presidents of the Coca Cola Company and in recent years purchased a large bottling plant at Salt Lake City, Utah. He lives in Salt Lake and operates the plant.

While he was located in Chicago, he met and married Miss Loraine Logan, of one of the most prominent Chicago families. Her parents were Stuart Logan and Gladys Goodrich. Her paternal grandparents were Frank G. Logan and Josephine Hancock and her maternal grandparents were Horace A. Goodrich and Alice Ladue. These families were patrons of art and music as well as authors and were most generous in their contributions and help to such causes.

John Howard Felton attended Mercer University for two years and Georgia Alabama Business College for several months. He was editor of a newspaper at Montezuma and at the time was probably the youngest newspaper editor in Georgia. He has been connected with the Coca Cola Company for several years and lives in Atlanta, Georgia.

Below is given the genealogy of the MacFarlane - Heard families down to Isaac Barnett MacFarlane and Elizabeth Heard. I have not attempted to trace the Heard Family, but give a copy of the Heard D. A. R. papers of Mrs. Virginia E. Heard Garrett. The descendants of Isaac Barnett MacFarlan are principally interested in the Heards on account of his marrying Elizabeth Heard, and this record has been provided primarily for the information of such descendants, though a copy of this MacFarlane record will be given complimentary to all those interested.

H E A R D F A M I L Y

The following sheets are copies of D. A. R. papers on the Heard Family which Miss Sallie Fannie Evans obtained from Peter A. Brannan, Department of Archives and History of Alabama, Montgomery, Alabama.

Mr. Brannan's wife, the former Frances Frazier, is descended from the Heards and he had obtained this information in working up his wife's D. A. R. papers.

These papers were furnished me by Mrs. Frances Evans Walker, of Stonewall, Mississippi, who is a niece of Sallie Fannie Evans.

It seems that William Heard (1755 - 1825) is the D. A. R. Kingpin or key man in this Heard record, and the following quotations are not amiss:

"The Revolutionary Records of Georgia, by Lucian Lamar Knight includes the name of William Heard in the "Certified List of Revolutionary Soldiers", p. 355."

"The D. A. R. Lineage Book, Volume 125, p. 273, gives this data on William Heard:

"William Heard (1755 - 1825) served under Col. Elijah Clark and received for his services 287 acres of land as a bounty, agreeable to an act passed 1781 in the General Assembly at Augusta. He was born in Hanover County, Virginia; died in Jackson County, Georgia."

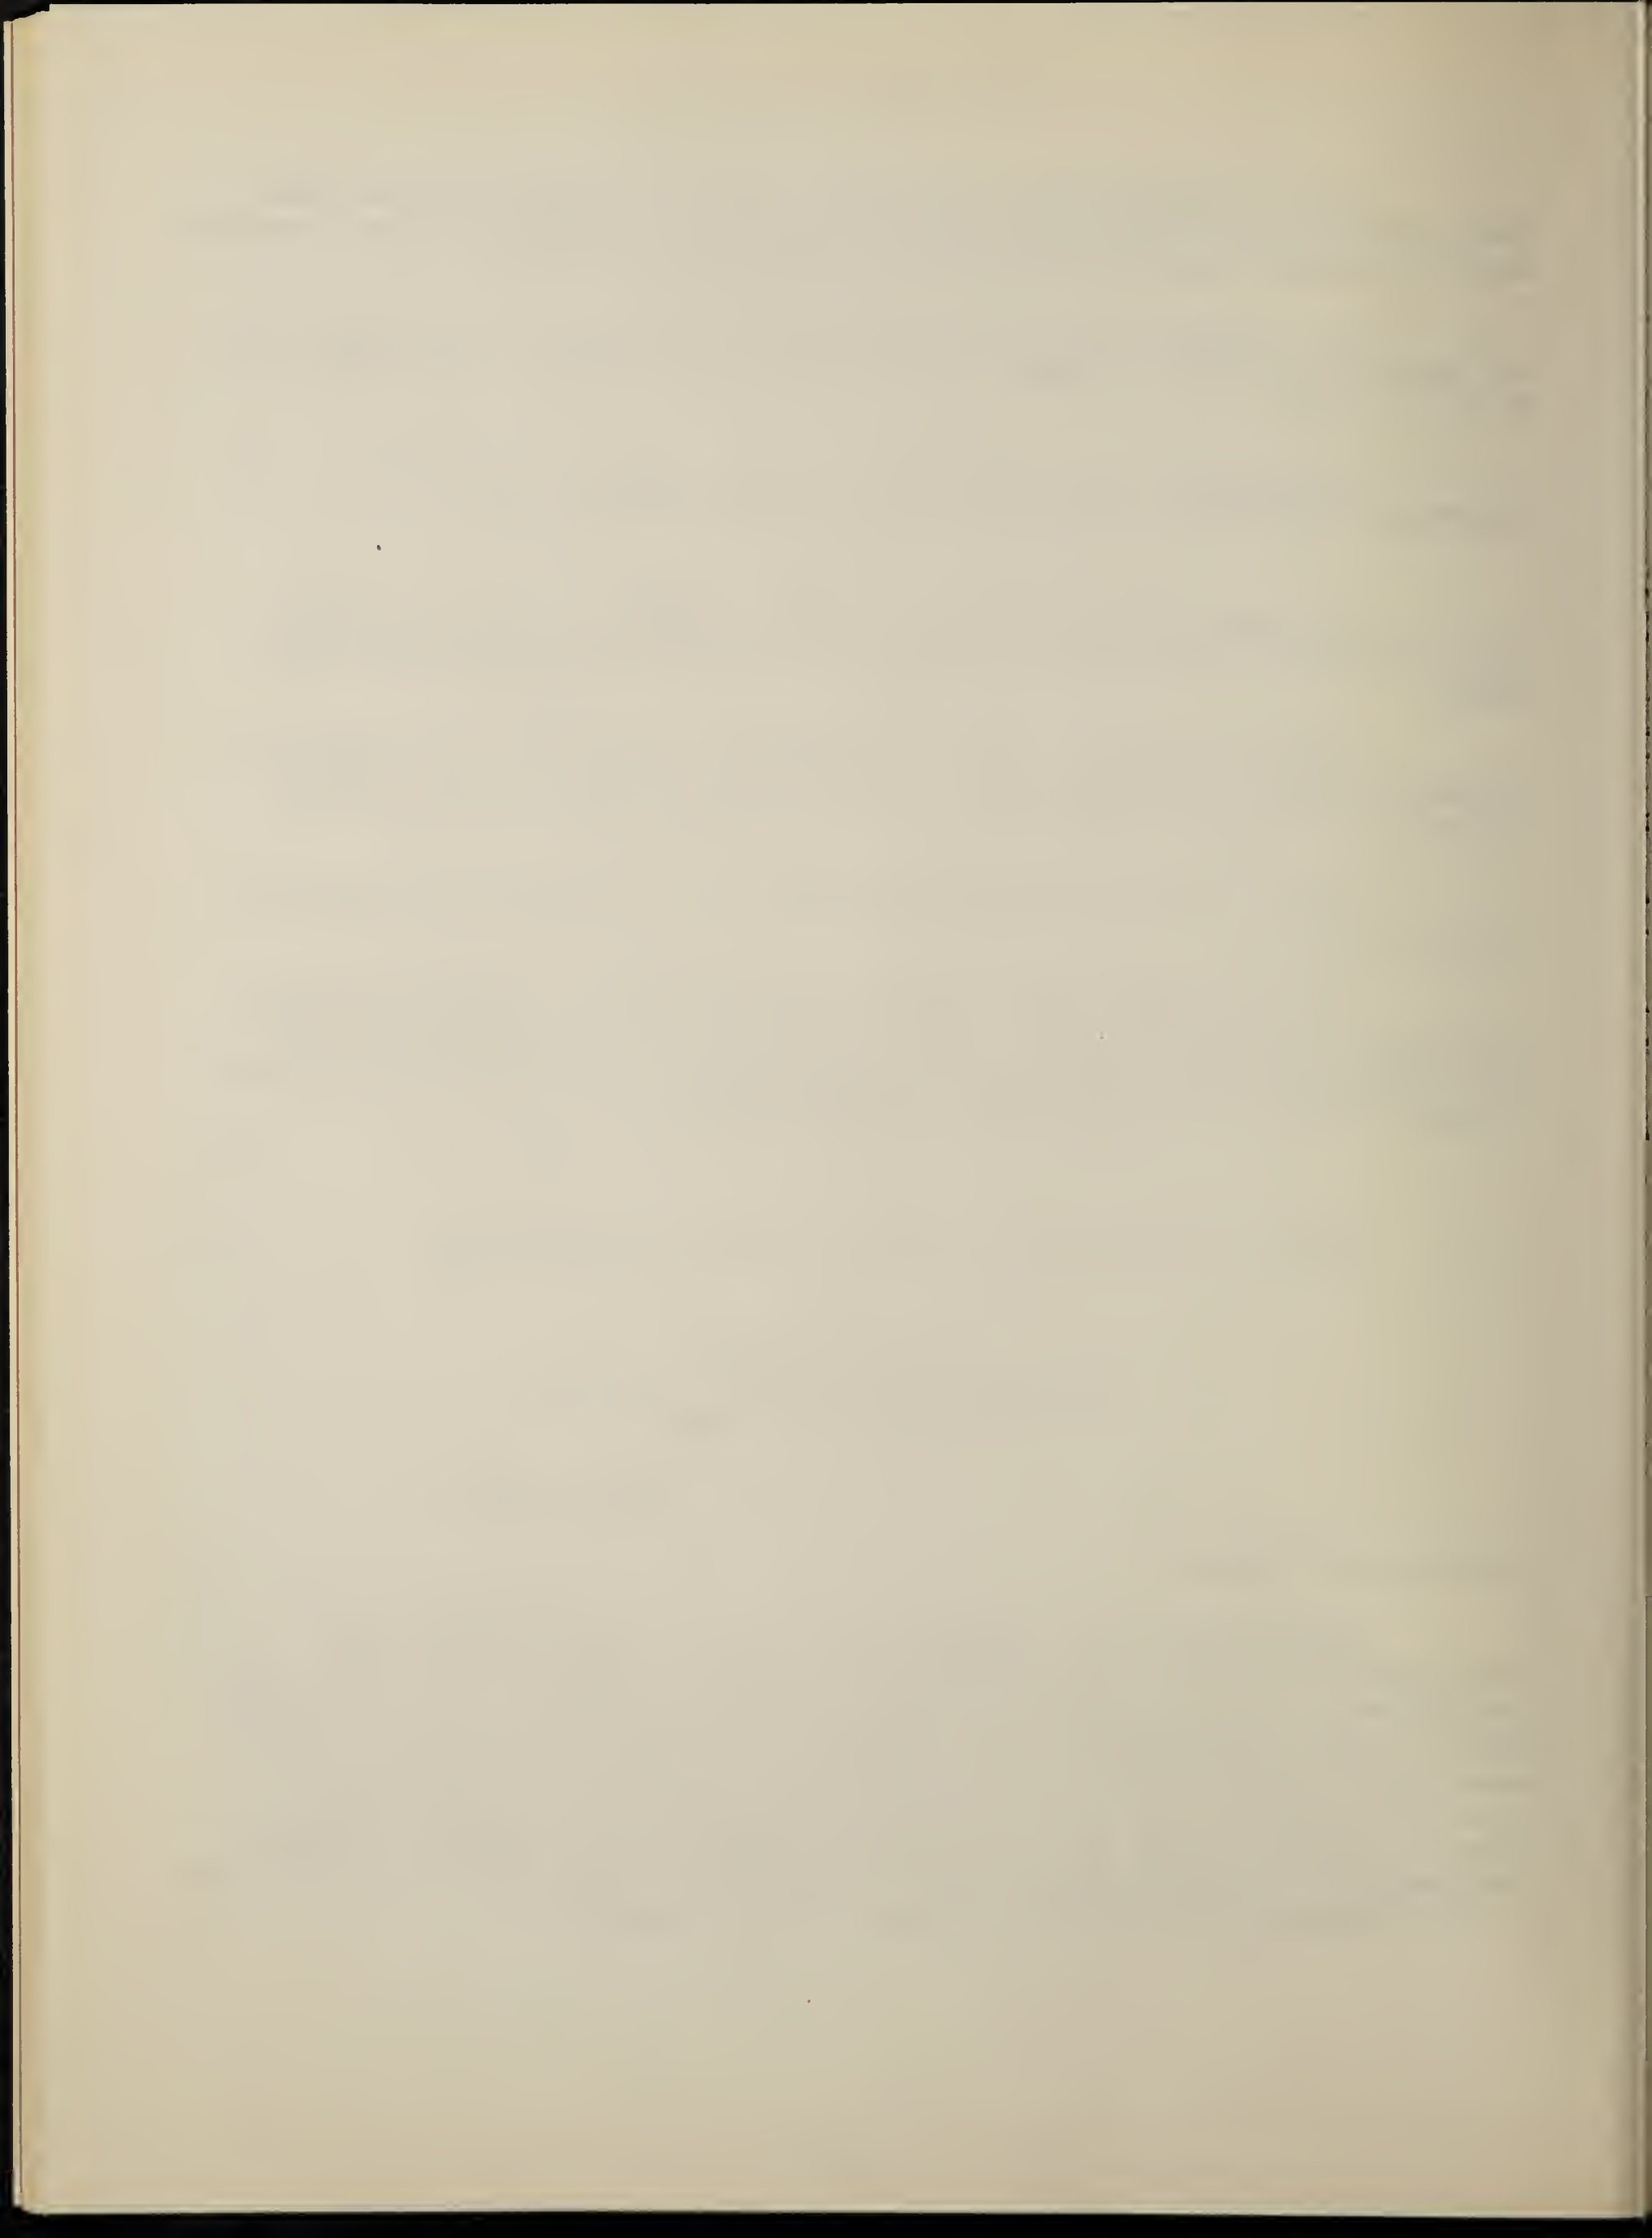

The following letter from Mr. Brannan is interesting:

My dear Mrs. Walker:

Referring to your inquiry with reference to the Heard data, if you want to make an application on the basis of Mrs. Brannon's D. A. R. certificate and are using Miss Sallie Fannie Evan's papers, then you should merely send in the number of Mrs. Brannon's D. A. R. registration. I am assuming that you copied that when you copied Miss Evan's paper. I have a good deal of Heard data but there never was any question as to William Heard's service in Col. Clark's outfit, however, at the time Mrs. Brannon was admitted, the genealogical line had not been sufficiently worked out and it was necessary for me to revise Mrs. Garrett's papers.

A search of the records will show that Mrs. Pearce and her daughter were originally admitted under the authority of Mrs. Garrett's paper which was in error and it was necessary for me to get the record from George Garrett, recently deceased, who at that time lived near Box Springs, east of Columbus. Mr. Garrett, who was a celebrated sportsman, was much publicized three years ago in all the sporting journals in America. He had much furniture and all the family records of the Heards, McFarlands and several branches of your family. I presume his daughters still have this material. They live somewhere in the neighborhood of the old homestead but do not live in that house. I am satisfied that most anybody in Columbus where I am assuming you have friends, can tell you where to reach them. Their home is not far from the present Gentian.

HEARD HISTORY

(Newspaper clipping)

Having known the true history of Governor Stephen Heard since I was able to comprehend who my antecedents were, there seemed nothing remarkable in the facts that he was the "leader" and "pioneer" of Wilkes and Elbert counties and that his remains rested in Heardmont cemetery.

My father, who was mortally wounded in the "seven days fights" around Richmond, while leading his regiment to a charge, was laid to rest at Heardmont, in 1862. My mother, broken by the hardships that came after the protecting care of her gallant husband was gone, died, and is buried by his side. These graves that hold the remains of the two that were dearest on earth to me, are very near the tombs of Governor Heard and his wife.

One learns history well, when called to take part and experiences and sorrows help to engrave it on heart and mind. So, though the price is great, there is some recompense in knowing that we can bear witness to noble deeds.

In Hist. Col., VOL. II, 258, is an article signed "G. G. Smith". He seems to be an industrious searcher of court records and did me an especial favor, for which I thank him by sending information of Stephen Heard, who died in 1815, and left a will, in Morgan County. He said: "The will of Stephen Heard, recorded in Morgan, may be the will of Governor Stephen".

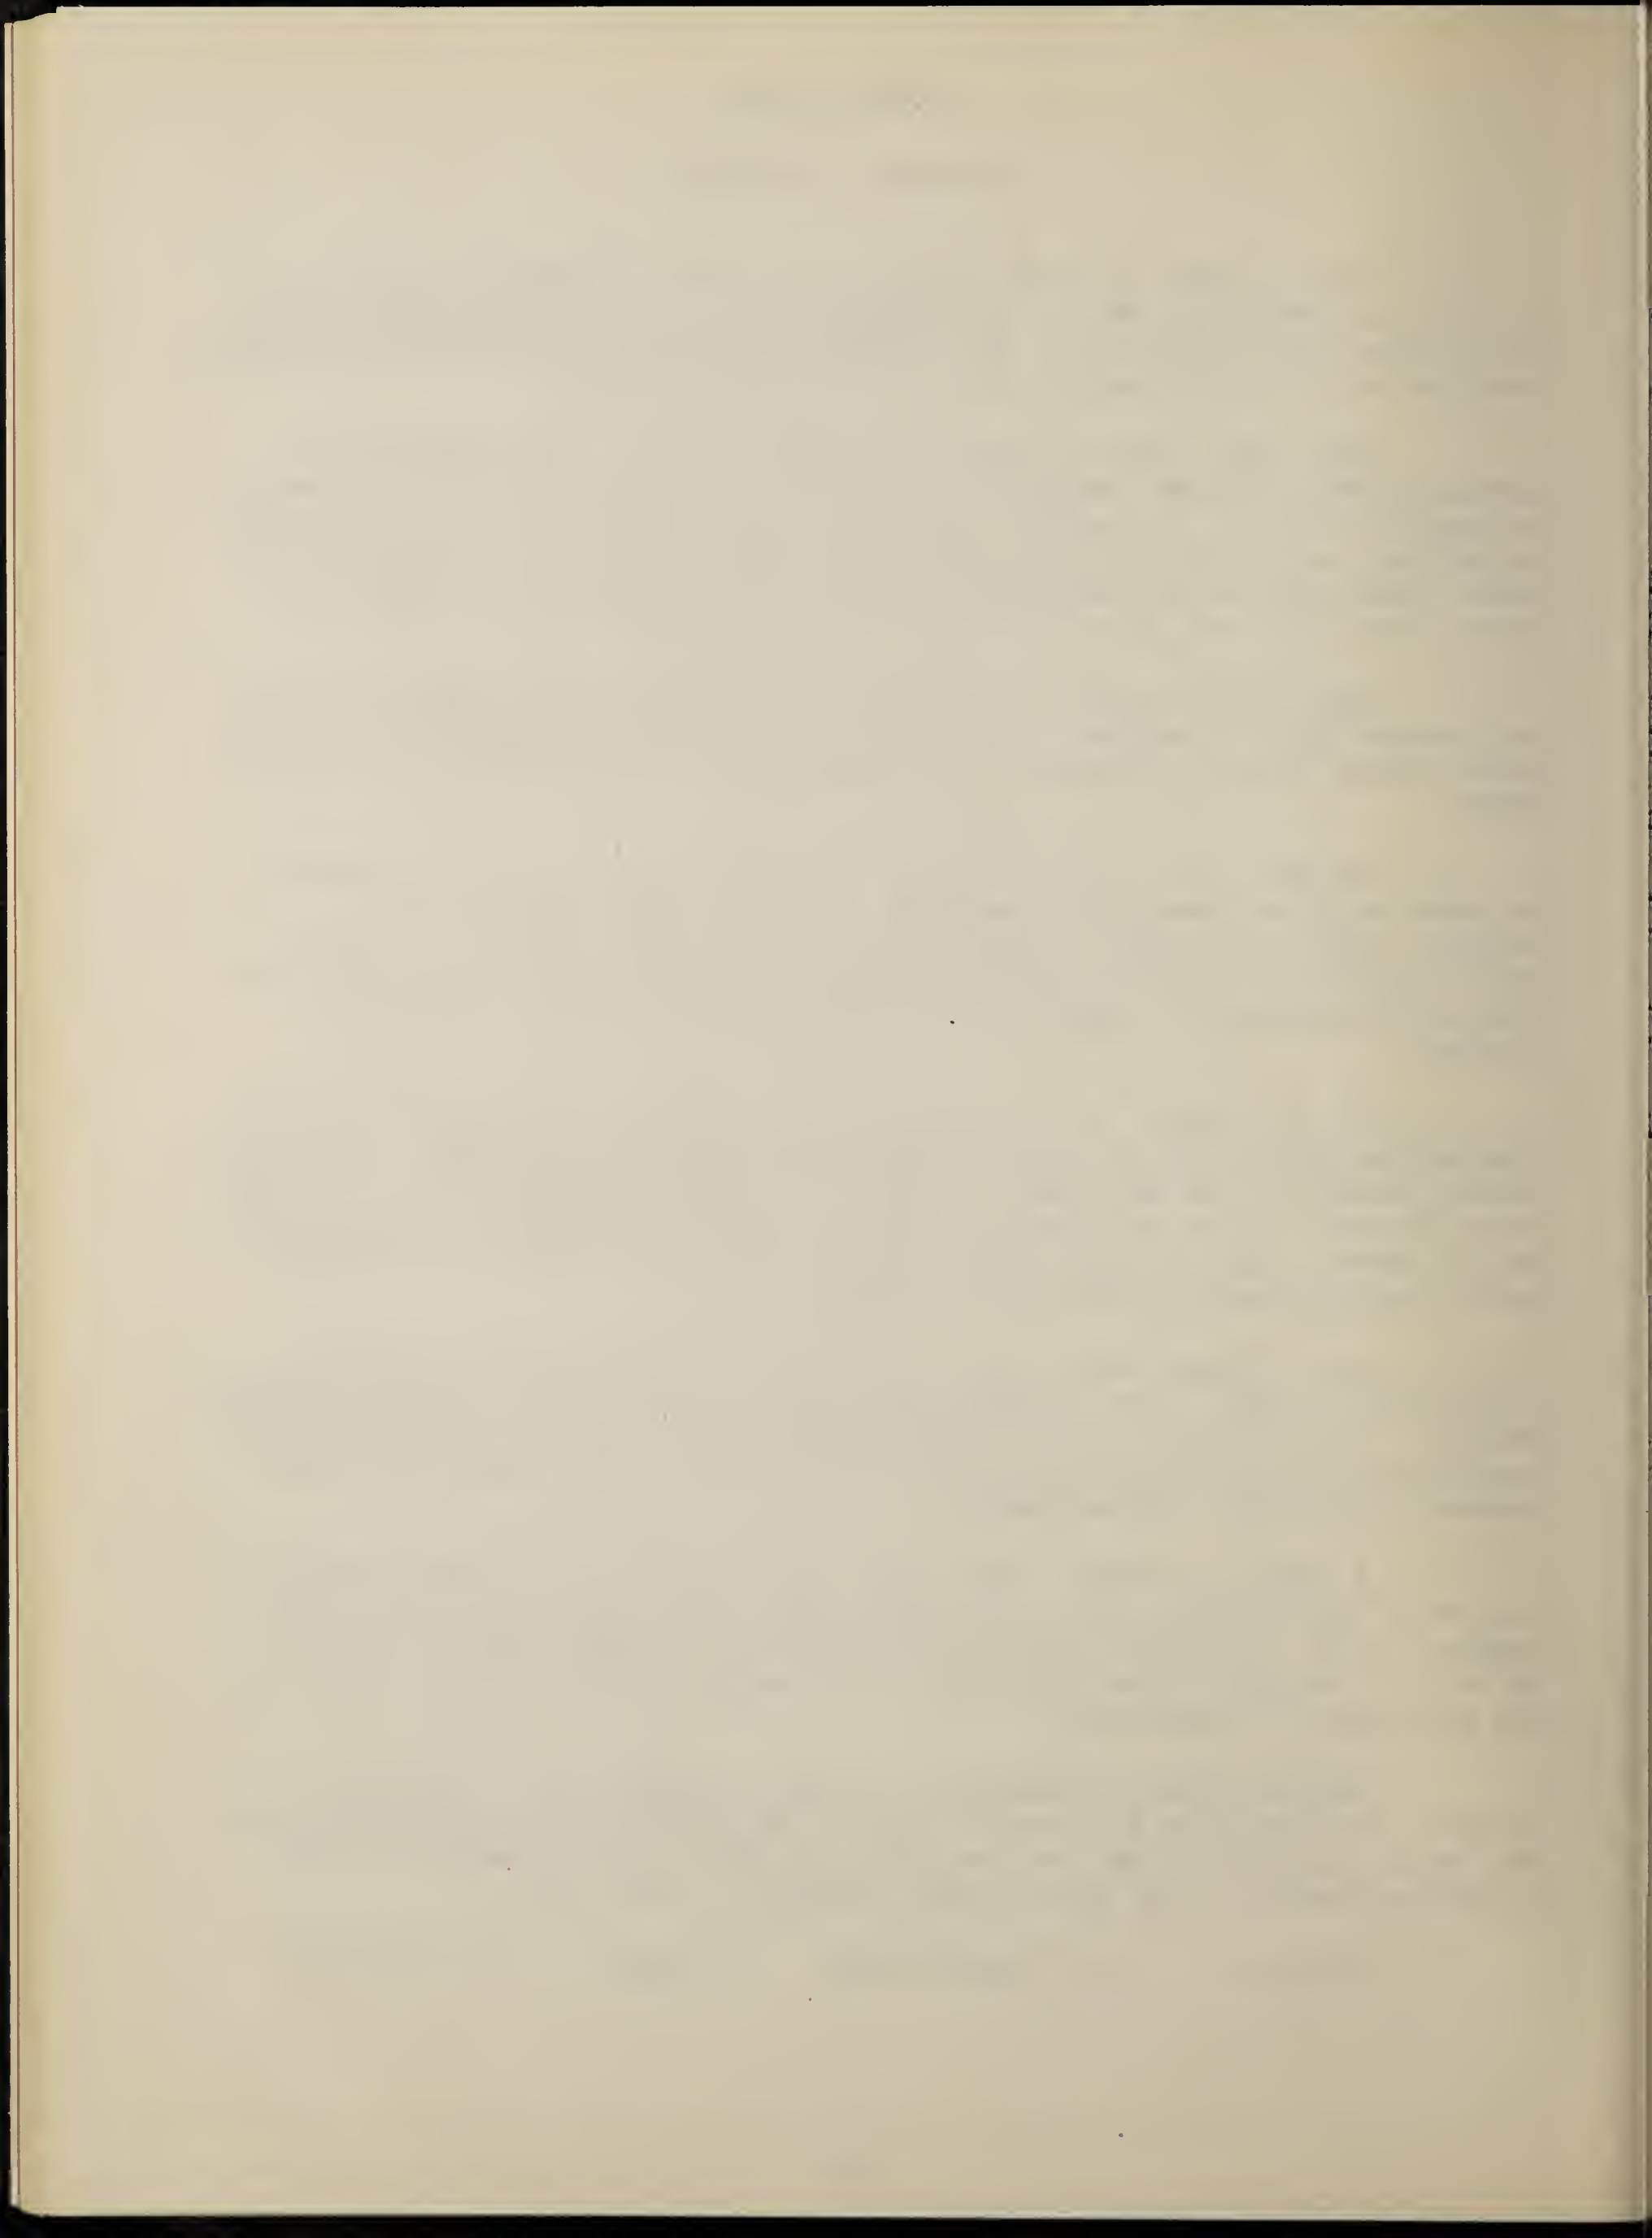

No, Mr. Smith. It is not the will of Governor Stephen Heard. The Stephen Heard who died in Morgan County and whose will is recorded there, was a first cousin of the governor, a son of his uncle Stephen, or a son of his Uncle Charles. If it was Stephen, the son of Stephen Heard and Mary Falkner, he was several years younger than Governor Heard. If the son of Charles Heard, he may have been about the same age.

Capt. Thomas Heard and a Mr. Stephen Heard were in the Georgia legislature of 1795. Capt. Thomas Heard was a son of Stephen Heard and Mary Falkner. I do not know whether the Stephen Heard, who was with him in the legislature of 1795, was his brother or his cousin. They were both first cousins to Governor Stephen Heard.

I request that Mr. Smith and others interested in Heard history follow me very closely, for it is easy to get lost in the "mazes" of this family. If Mr. Smith will read the letter of Dr. Falkner Heard, which is in Vol. II, he will learn that there were "many Heards" in Wilkes County at the beginning of Independence.

In "The Story of Georgia", by Geo. G. Smith, D.D. I find this clause: "A convention has been called by the legislature of 1794 to revise the constitution, and it met in the spring of 1795. It was composed of the following members: (run the eye down the page to 'Elbert'):

"Elbert, L. Higginbottom, S. Heard, W. Barnett."

That would have been written by either Higginbottom or Barnett with the name "S. Heard" placed first. It was the name of their loved and trusted leader, Stephen Heard, who had served his country in peace and war, faithfully and well. He it was who was the first foreman of a grand jury in Wilkes County, and his name is at the head of the first grand jury list of Elbert County, when court was held at the old Carter place in 1791.

If Mr. Smith will look carefully in Vol. II he will find a list of the names of the children of Governor Heard. If he wishes better proof, he can see the old family Bible, from which I copied the names. It is now in the possession of Hon. Robert Middleton Heard, mayor of Elberton. "Mrs." Wall is "right" about the relationship of the three or four "Stephens" Heard who have "confused" the "historians". I knew of the errors of Mr. White in regard to the history of Governor Stephen Heard long ago and believe it was not his fault, but that the blame must rest with his "careless informers".

The people of the South were too "self-satisfied" before the war. There was an Arcadian sweetness in the Savannah valley life that lulled and charmed. Accomplished men and women cared little for the small matter of a "mistake in history" by some struggling historian, when they were known throughout the state and Georgia "kept records".

Mr. Smith probably falls short of facts when he states: "I am sure my old friend, Rev. Peter Heard, descended from George, son of Stephen, of the Morgan record".

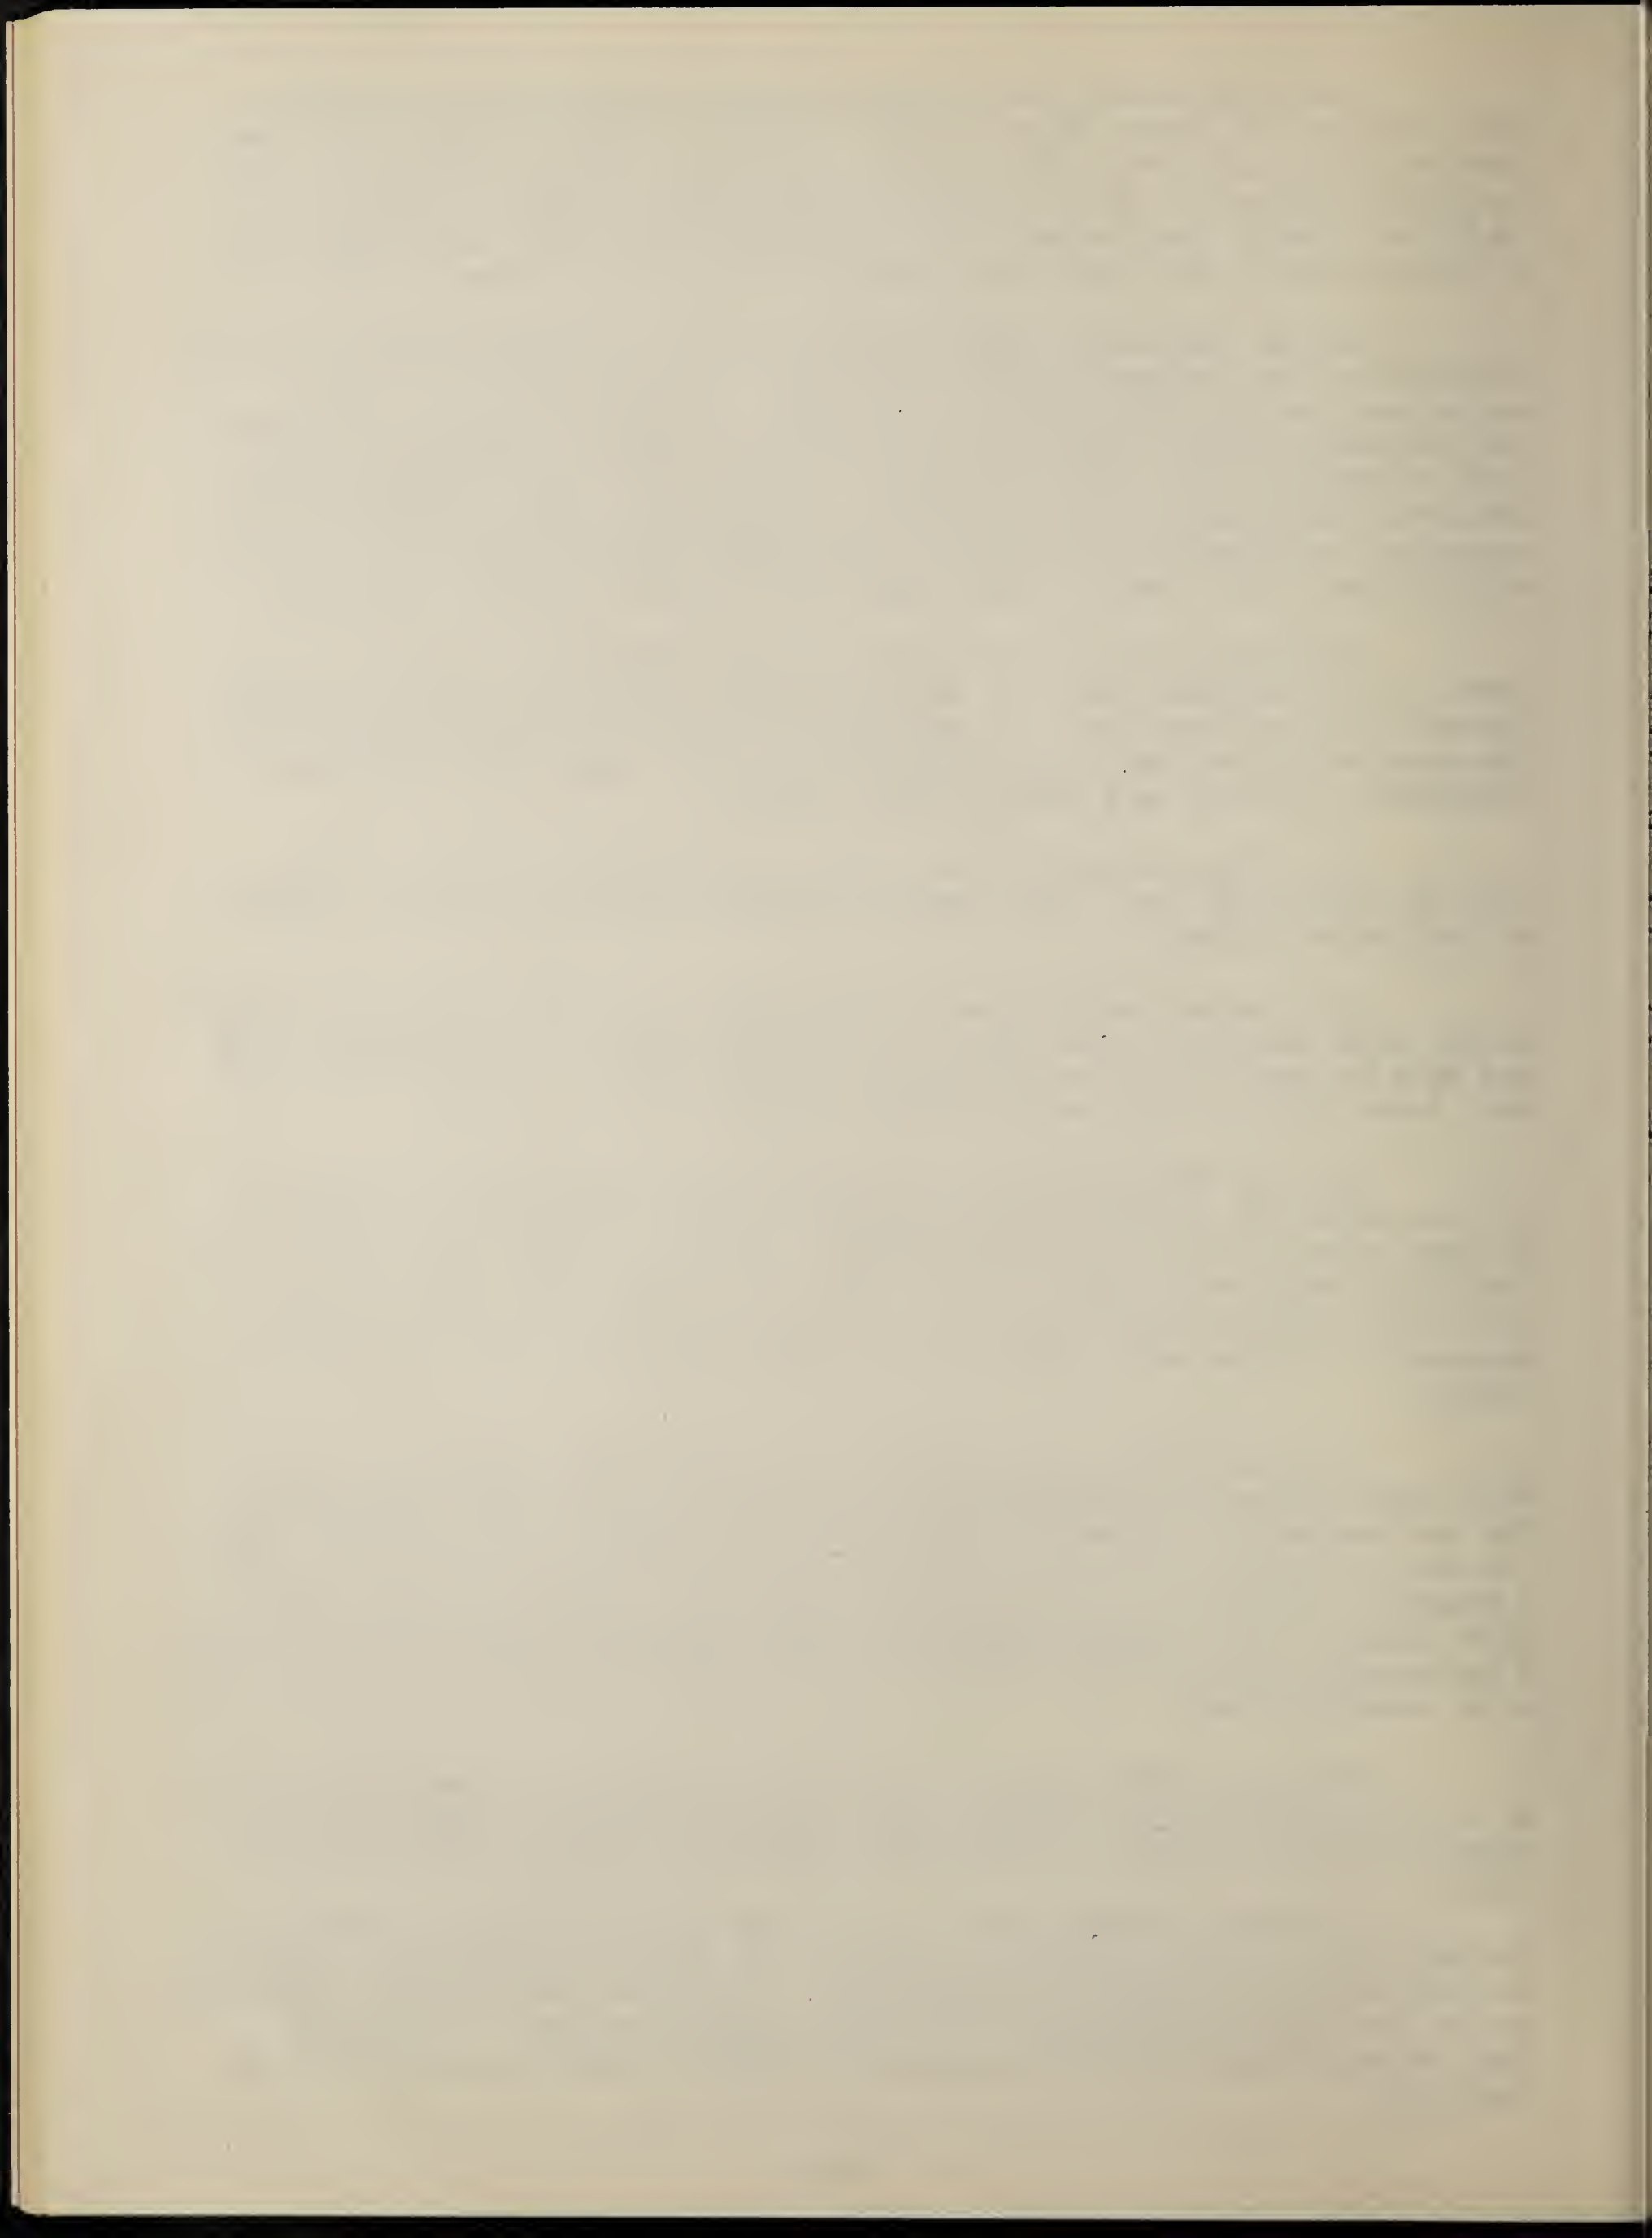

If I am not misinformed of the "lines" of my Heard kinsmen, George Heard, from whom Rev. Peter Heard was descended, was a son of Stephen Heard and Mary Falkner. This Stephen Heard lived and died in Virginia. Was not Rev. Peter Heard related to the Coffee family?

By some strange fatality, I seem to have been called to the work of collecting the history of the southern branches of the Heard family. In 1894 Colonel Henry Clay Fairman wrote to me for sketches of Elbert County families, naming the "Heards" and "Allens" as "people of consequence" who might have "interesting histories". I recognized the fact that I was not prepared to do the work, but I replied and told him "I would do the best I could."

I corresponded with several persons whom I thought "should know more about the matter than myself", without gaining additional information. The sad realization dawned upon me then that I, perhaps, knew as much about the Elbert county families as anyone living, and I knew far too little. But I managed to write the articles for Colonel Fairman which appeared in The Sunny South. Those sketches could have been changed and bettered later, for I became unwilling to take statements "for granted" without "proof", and learned to search records.

About one year ago, feeling safe in "accumulated knowledge" gained of several branches of my family, I was surprised to learn that another family of Heards claimed our "Stephen" and had put him down something like this:

"Governor Stephen Heard, son of John Heard, who was the son of Stephen Heard and Mary Falkner." Also one day when conversing with a friend who was earnestly seeking her "ancestors", I received the challenge: "How can you be the great-granddaughter of Governor Stephen Heard?". I replied: "When Governor Heard married my great-grandmother he was 44 and she was 19 years old."

Mrs. Peel, dear regent of our Habersham Chapter, I trust you will bear with me. The time is past when southern women can keep silent and expect their brave dead to be honored. We must search the records and tell the true story. If my answer for the identity of Governor Stephen Heard is not sufficient in this article, it will be useless for me to attempt to enlighten the readers of these columns again. And I take the occasion here to say, if I can receive cooperation, from members of different branches of the family, it is my desire to make a genealogical history of the Heard family.

Governor Stephen Heard, "pioneer", "soldier" and "statesman", a worthy man, did his duty as hundreds of his noble kinsman did before and after him. The name is a good one, and we will not let it pass into oblivion for lack of pen to inscribe it.

John Heard, born in Ireland (the brother of Stephen Heard, who married Mary Falkner), moved from Virginia to North Carolina and carried his family, sometime before the year 1764. He and his son, Stephen, fought in the colonial wars, and were distinguished for services rendered.

When the excitement of the "beauty" and "fertility" of the "Broad River country" was at its height, John Heard removed from North Carolina to Georgia with his family and settled in that section which was afterwards known as "Wilkes county". "Headrights" were granted to John Heard and his two sons, Stephen and Barnard, sometime between the years 1764 and 1769, and they immediately built "Fort Heard". Stephen Heard became the "captain" of the fort and guardian of the people, protecting and sheltering helpless women and children and leading the men to drive off the marauding Indians. This is colonial history.

In the light of these facts it is easy to see why Stephen Heard who the idol of the people of this section when the Revolutionary war came upon them. They suffered in the conflict, too. The waters of the Savannah were red with blood when the British and Americans fought in "Cherokee ford". At "Kettle Creek" Stephen Heard commanded a regiment. Whether he had a "commission" of colonel or lieutenant colonel I do not know; but afterwards he was known as "Colonel Stephen Heard", and the title is engraved on his tomb. His beautiful Sword, the guard a spread eagle, the hilt finely chased in gold and inlaid with mother of pearl, hangs in the home of Eugene Barnard Heard, his Grandson at "Rosehill", Elbert county. The blade of good steel is untarnished and as free from stain as the spotless character of the man who drew it in defense of his country's rights.

On "Oakland" plantation, once a part of Wilkes, now in Elbert, a battle was fought in the "branch bottom" below the old Allen quarter. Colonel Stephen Heard's horse was shot there by "Ballanger", a tory, and fell, crushing the colonel's leg. That hurt and the loss of a tooth, shot out when he was giving a command, were the only injuries he sustained in the war.

Before the time of these engagements in which he took part he had been imprisoned in the fort at Augusta, but had escaped with the assistance of a faithful slave.

Barnard Heard kept the court records of Wilkes for many years, and it was through the faithfulness of this "pioneer" family of Heards that the early records of Wilkes were preserved. The records themselves bear testimony, in the firm, strong handwriting and signature that can still be seen there.

Barnard Heard, registrar of Wilkes county, was known as "Major Barnard Heard, in Revolution. He was carried "in irons" to Augusta and imprisoned in "Fort Cornwallis", but escaped in time to participate in the siege of Augusta.

In 1781 Heard history reached a climax: John Heard, the father of Stephen and Barnard, was imprisoned and starving in Fort Cornwallis. Major Barnard Heard found his father there, after the fort was reduced, and carried him home to Wilkes county. Colonel Stephen Heard one of the three governors of that year (the only one in the state) held the administration together at Fort Heard, and employed himself in watching the situation, sending dispatches to General Washington, and taking care of the records.

The Heards were Whigs. Scores of them fought in the Revolutionary war. Maryland, Virginia, South Carolina, North Carolina and Georgia had their names on record----commissioned officers, non-commissioned officers and private soldiers. Men in their prime and beardless boys. Charles Heard and his sons fought in South Carolina and Georgia. The sons of Stephen Heard and Mary Falkner were enlisted in Virginia, but came to Georgia in 1784 and had grants of land in this state. It is useless for me to undertake to relate their deeds of valor in a short sketch like this. It is not that my family had the most history, but it has been collected and preserved. I have historical material of some others of the name who were illustrious examples of fidelity in England, Ireland and America, gracing the high offices of state, army and navy, with which they have been so often entrusted.

Some of the Heard family lines are broken and hard to get. This is, perhaps, owing to the fact that they have given themselves freely in sacrifice to home and country. In the great war between the states the southern Heards suffered many losses, and some still bear the scars of wounds received.

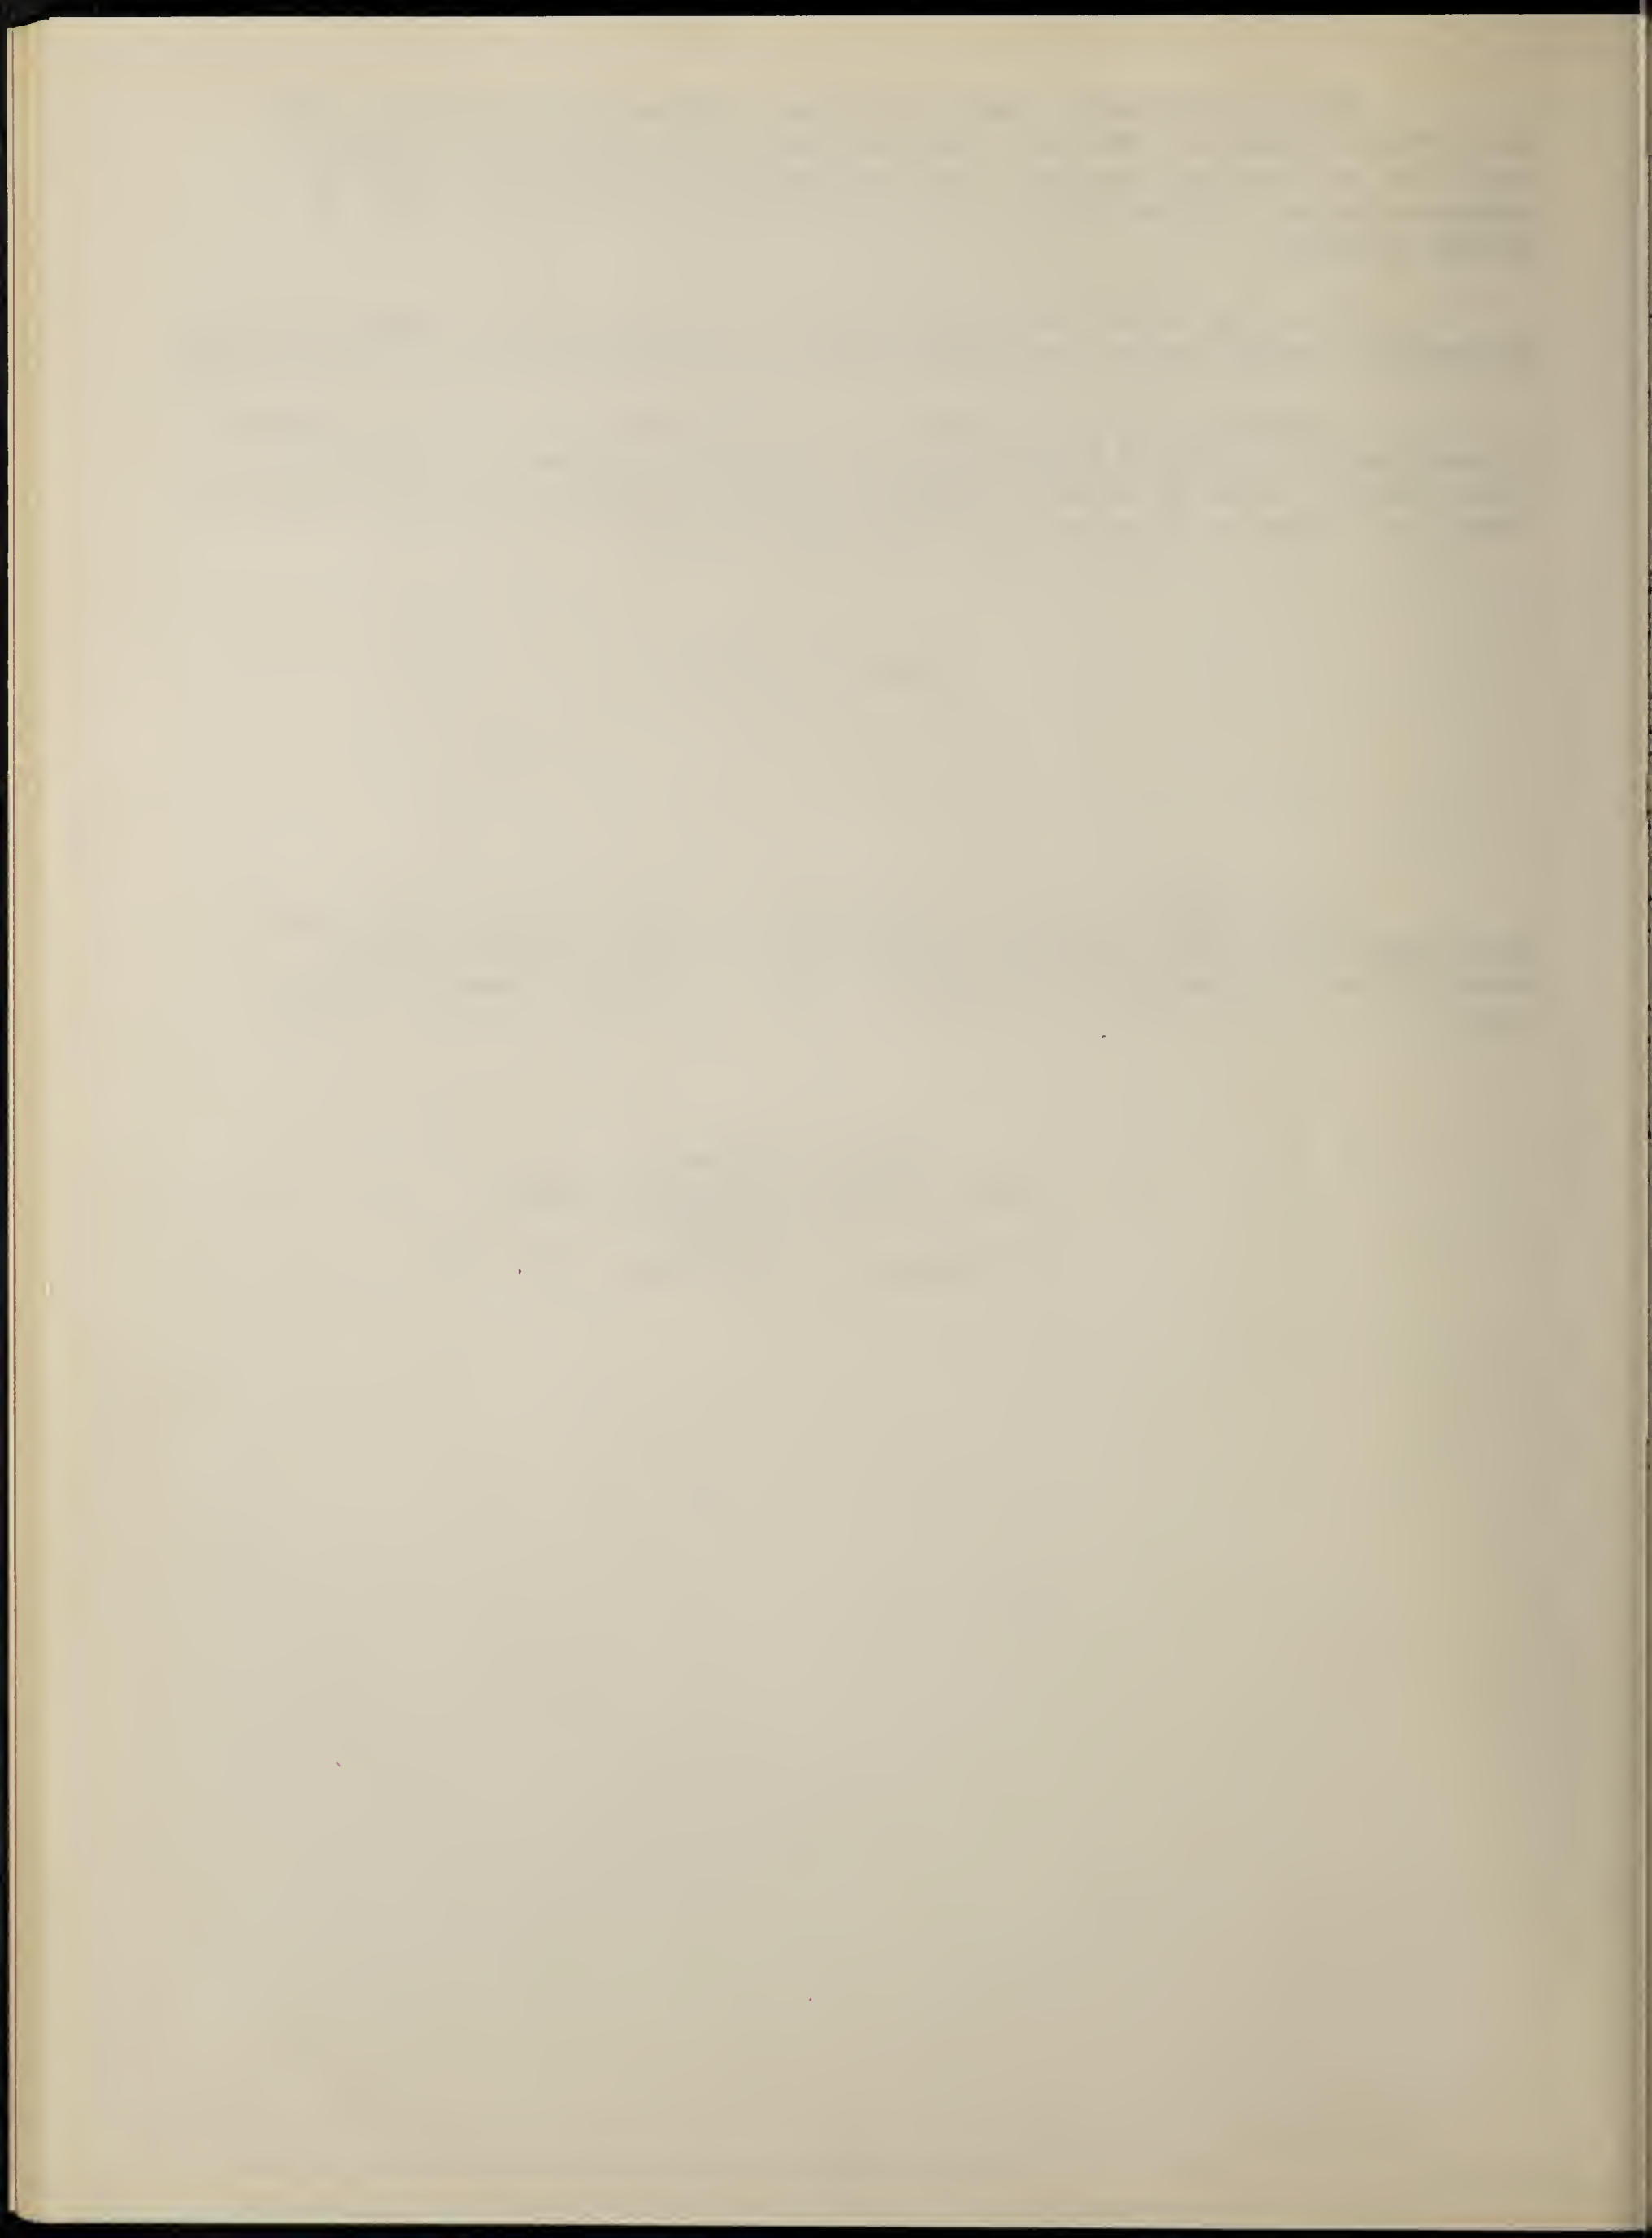

It is the character of the men to be brave; and the women are true. Emergencies bring them to the front, and their escutcheon remains untarnished.

In another article I wish to give the names of all the descendants of Governor Heard that I have been able to collect. Some are still in Elbert county, some in Atlanta, Augusta, Athens, Columbus and other places in Georgia; others in Alabama, Mississippi and Texas.

My dear Mr. Brannon,

Your Query in Atlanta Georgian refers to William Heard, and Jacob McClendon and family. William Heard & Jacob, & Jacob JR. and the two McClendon families came to Wilkes Co. Ga. 1773. (First records of Wilkes Co. 1773-74 which may be found in office of probate Wilkes Co.) This office contains interesting data of these families perhaps - Can you tell me if Jacob Sr. had a daughter who married Job Callaway, or his son (Job's) Jacob. There appears to have been a Callaway-McClendon marriage a generation or more before Jacob Sr. and his generation.

I live in Wilkes County - twenty miles from Lincoln County where there were many Frazers. In one day, full time, I can complete the search of Lincoln old records for one family. I am genealogical researcher in this section. I agree to search Lincoln Co. for Frazer for $4.00 bus fare, $2.00 extra - Should I fail to find the needed Frazer record there will be no charge except bus fare. As references, I give D. A. R. . historian of Kettle Creek Chapter, Mrs. W. I. Jackson, Washington, Ga. and Mrs. John L. Davidson, Quitman, Ga. who is State Chairman of preservation of records Georgia D. A. R.

My Heard chart at present is in Chicago for publication of the data in the new Compendium of Genealogy. Since your William Heard was born in Hanover, he is likely to belong in the Wilkes Co. Heard line Hanover Co. thru Carolina to Ga. I am descendent of Stephen Heard, uncle of Gov. Stephen Heard of Georgia. Family papers claim that the Heard brothers born in Hanover came to Augusta Co. at least Jesse Heard did. Later, after a short stay in N. C. & came to Wilkes Co. Ga. I have abstract of will of Stephen Heard, father of the Heards coming to Wilkes - This will was probated in Pittssylvania Co. 1773.

May I ask if you have the Jacob McClendon ancestral line worked out?

Yours sincerely-
Mrs. Edgar Lamar Smith

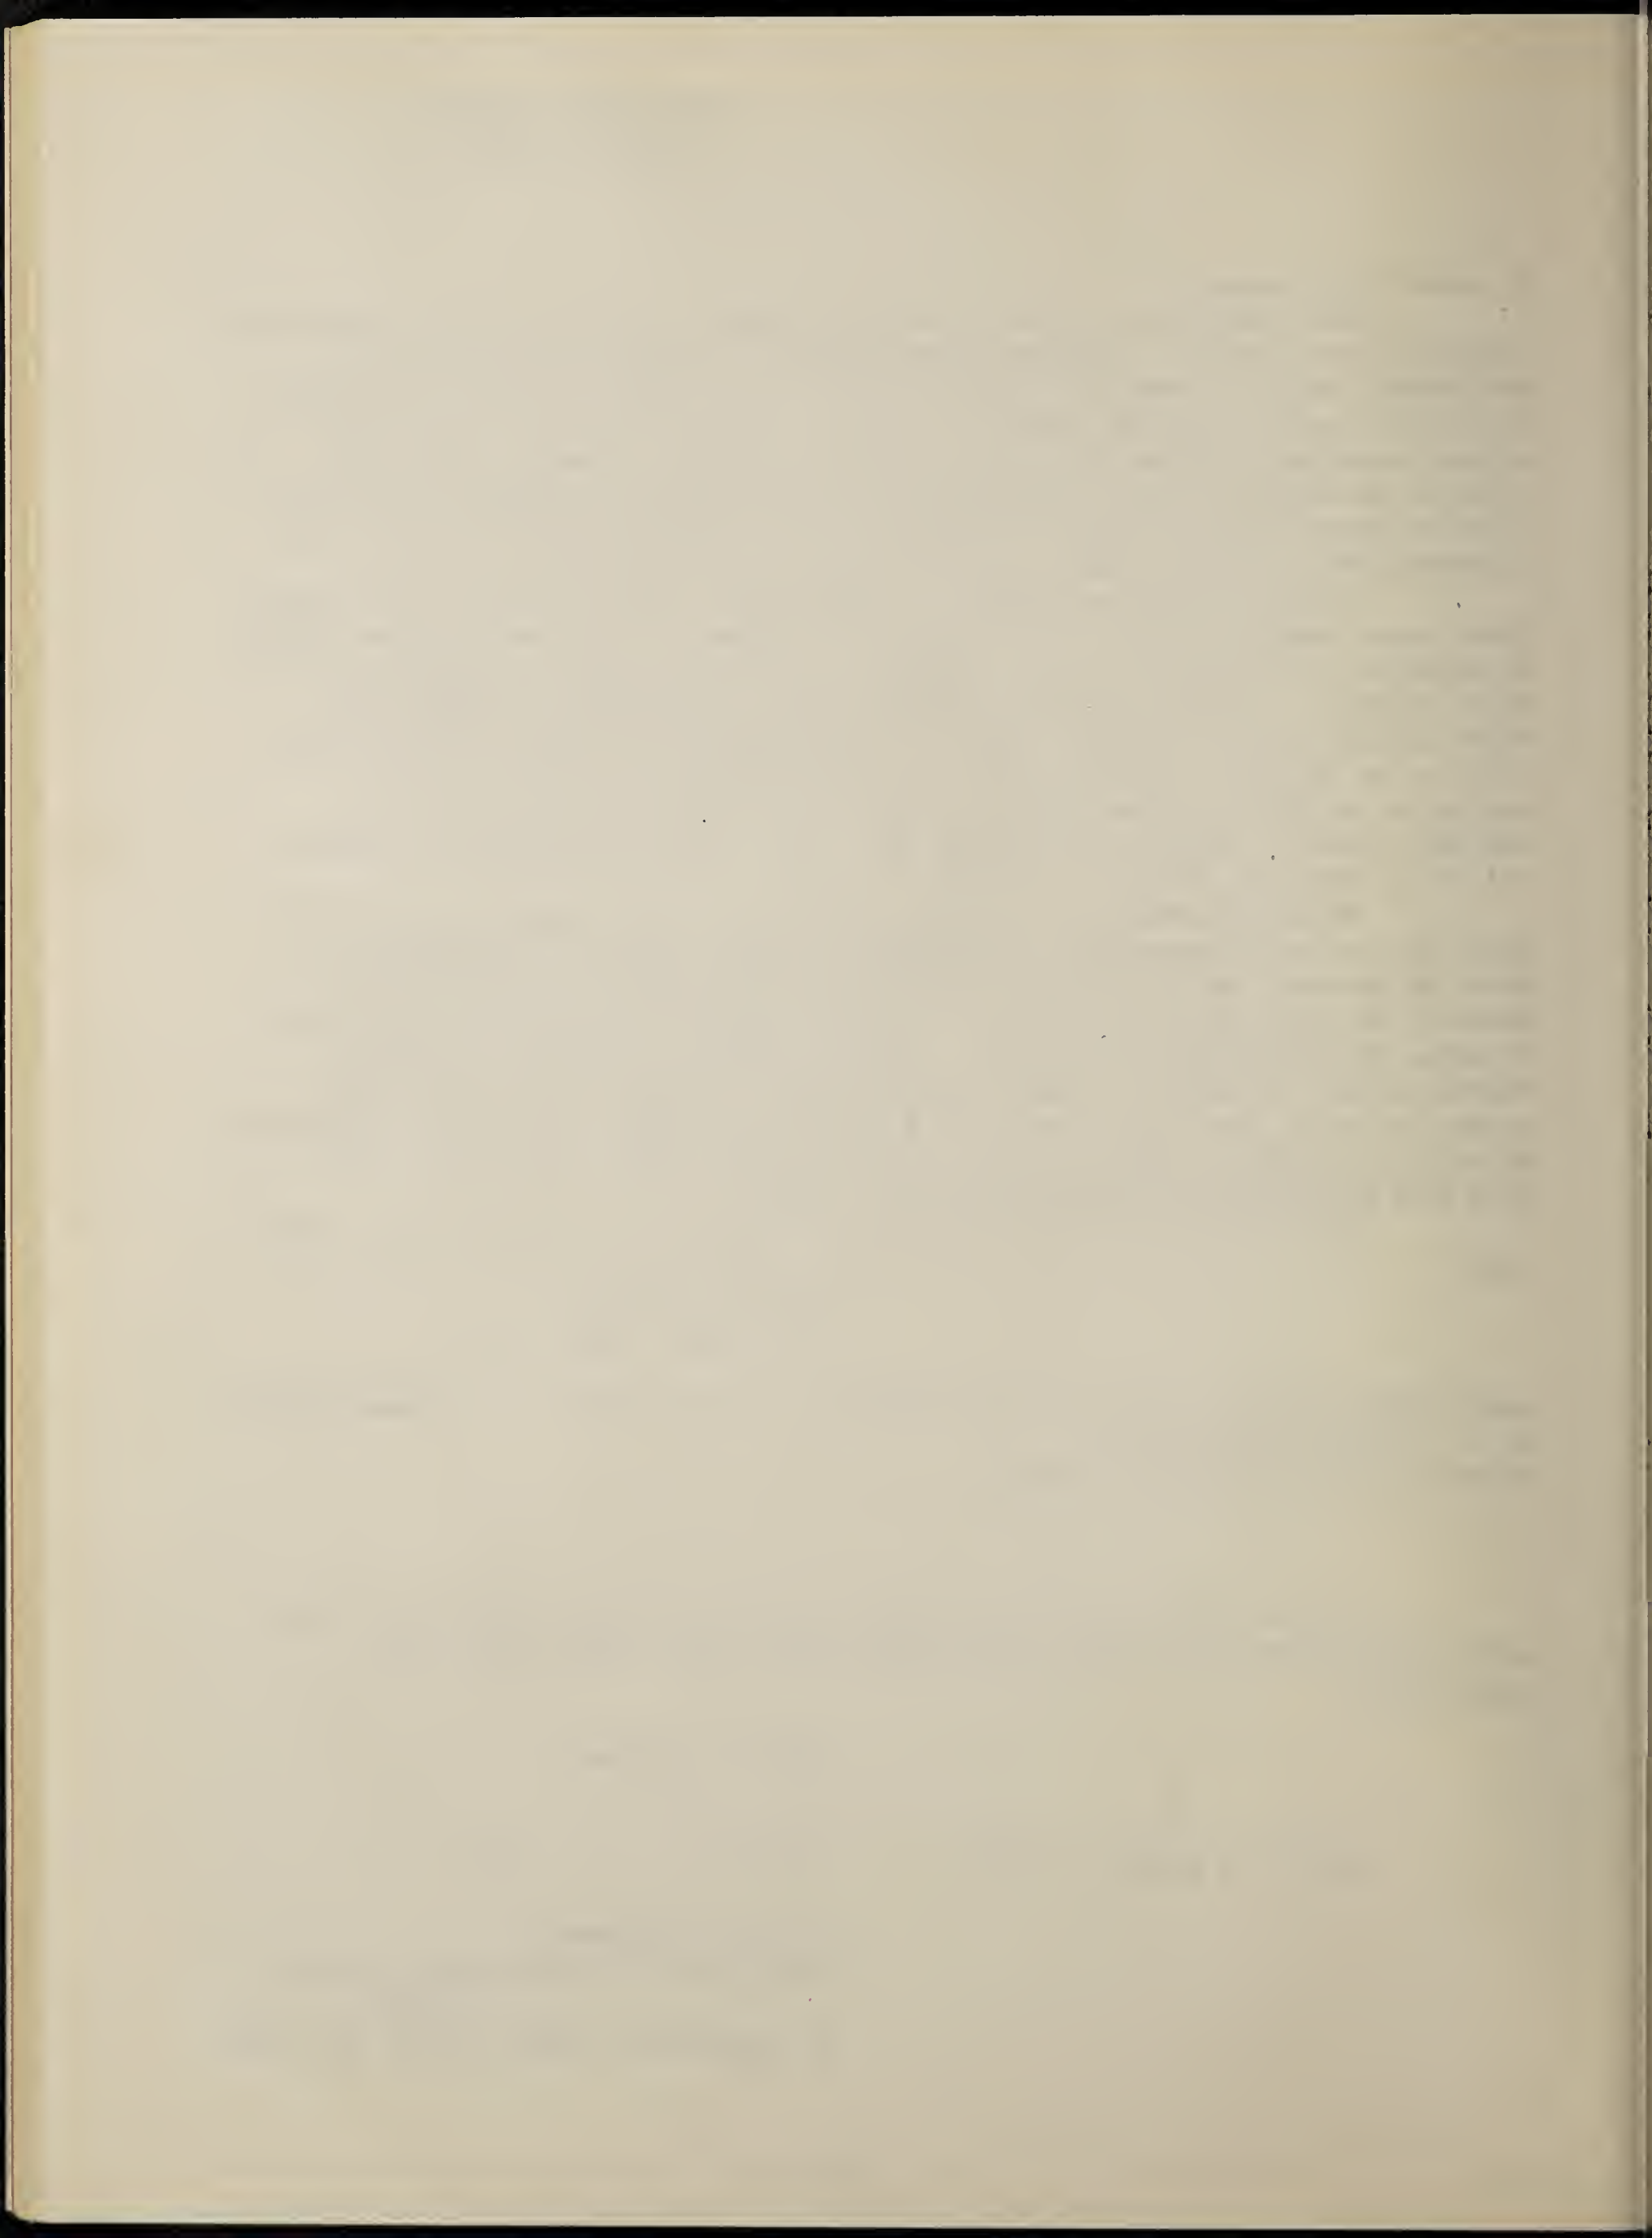

Jacob McClendon & Jacob Jr. with families came to Wilkes Co. (ceded-lands) 1773 - from North Carolina-
Have you William Heard's family?

I, this July 10, 1931, hereby certify that the above is a true and correct copy of a letter from Mrs. Edgar Lamar Smith now in my possession.

HEARD FAMILY

(NOTE: The following information on the Heard Family was sent in by one of the descendants, and is certainly very interesting. However, it is not a part of the William Heard D. A. R. papers, and is inserted for what it may be worth.)

The Southern Line of Heard family traces ancestry back to Nail Scotch Monarch--

This is a history of the Jesse Heard and the Jesse Faulkner Heard lines of the Southern branch of the Heard family.

History says that the Scotch king, Nail, who ruled over Ireland in A D 200 was an ancestor of the royal family of England. Later Nail became Nial, and the O'Neil. Through inter-marriage of Ulster O'Neila, North of Ireland, our Heard family ran back to Nail.

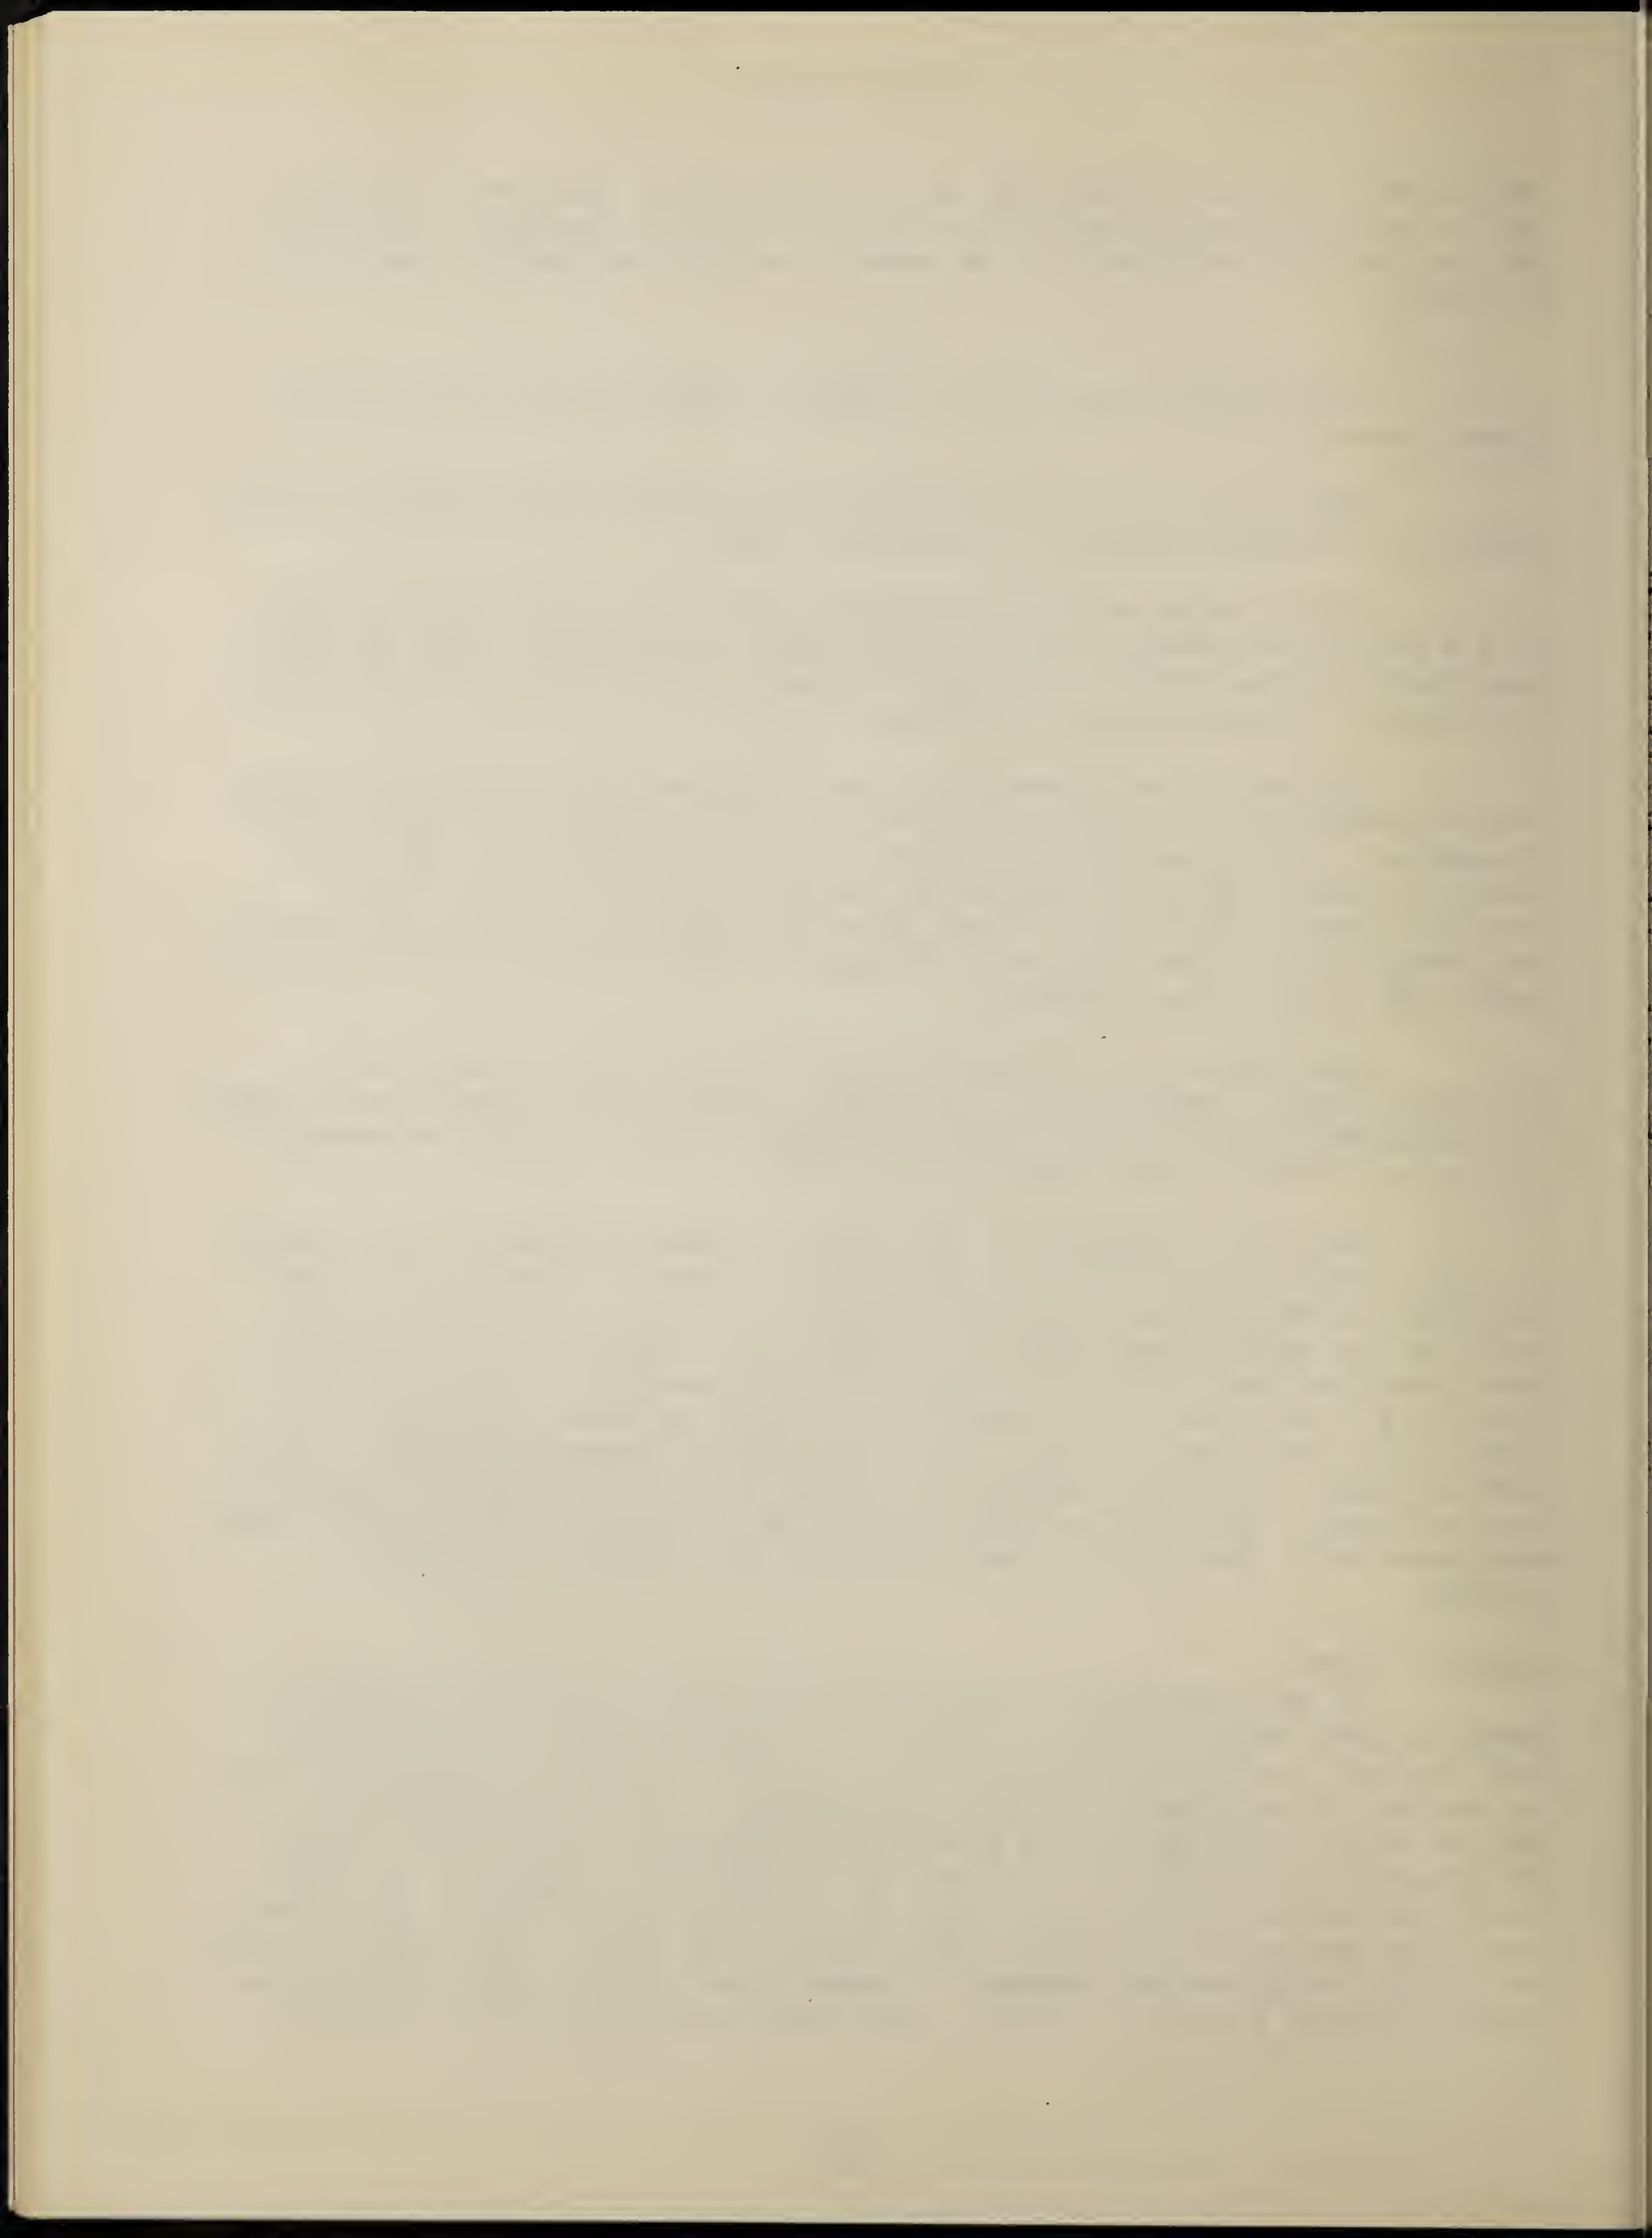

The Heards were Normans and went from the North of France to England with William the Conqueror, and were in the Crusades, and had a coat-of-arms and a French motto, the oldest Heard arms we know of. The next oldest is the one with a demi-goat and motto "Auditor". Later a demi-antelope given in England. All the Heards have similar shields, but different crests and mottoes. The water Bougets - animal skins to carry water in prove they were in the Crusades.

JOHN HEARD, whose ancestors came from Wiltshire, emigrated to Ireland and had a grant of land at Boston, settled, died and was buried there, - will dated April 20, 1619. This John Heard is said to have accompanied Sir Walter Raleigh on his expedition in 1579.

There is a pedigree of the family of Heard, chiefly of the county of Cork, compiled by Sir Gilbert King, Bart., which has South of Ireland coat-of-arms engraved upon it and the motto, "Auditor". Its preface comments on the various spellings of the name, viz. Yeard, Yerd, Yard, Heard, Hard, Herd and Hurd, the latter being found in Hurdsfield near Mac Clesfield in Wilshire and in the counties of Galway, Kilkenny and Meath, 1661 to 1669. It is said that in 1588, a Sir Isaac Heard presented to Queen Elizabeth a frigate, armed and equipped, to help the fleet of England against the Spanish Armada. For this service to the Crown of England, estate in Ireland were granted to the Heards. Some of the family, however, remained in England.

EARL OF TYRONE

Of the Heards who settled granted estates in Aiglish, County Tyrone, Ireland, moved there from estates in Keighley, West Riding County, York England, was John, Earl of Tyrone, who came to America in 1719 or 1720 on account of intolerable religious persecution. He left Ireland after a quarrel with a minister of the Established Church over payment of tithes. He brought with him his six sons and five daughters, leaving the seventh son to settle his affairs. This was said to have been Stephen. The other sons were Charles, John, James, Jesse, Thomas and George. The names and fate of the five daughters are unknown. Stephen came the next year bringing his wife, Lady Mary Faulkner of Wales, who eloped with him in order to marry.

Tradition says that Lord Faulkner of Wales repulsed Stephen with scorn when he asked for his daughter's hand in marriage, because, although of noble birth, he was an Irishman. This, in the eyes of the pompous Nobleman, made Stephen an unworthy aspirant when he insultingly cried "No Irish dog shall have me daughter". Stephen replied, "I go, but the Irish dog will be heard from again". Half-way across the Atlantic ocean they passed a ship returning to England and Stephen sent this message to his thwarted father-in-law. "The Irish dog and your daughter are on their way to America."

JOHN HEARD, father of Stephen, settled in Hanover County, Virginia, in the immediate neighborhood of the Washington family. When George Washington raised a regiment, a good many of the Heards joined it. They soon scattered out the State and some of them in the adjoining states. In Albermarle County is Heards Mountain, the highest peak there, and at its base is Heards, a small town.

Stephen Heard, who married Lady Faulkner, was the father of Jesse Heard of Georgia and therefore the relationship between Gov. Stephen Heard and Jesse Heard was that of first cousin. The two families were very close to each other, so much so, that John Heard's will reads "I do constitute and appoint my trusty friend, my son, Stephen Heard and my son-in-law, Joseph Staton and my nephew Jesse Heard, executors of this my last will and testament."

Stephen Heard (father of Jesse) and husband of Mary Faulkner, died in Pittsylvania County on Oct. 29th, 1774. His will probated November 24th, 1774 gave legatees: wife, Mary, children Jesse, Mary, Stephen, George, Annie Gilliam and Susannah Standifer.

Voluminous data in the Joseph Habersham Chapter of D. A. R. Historical Collections Vol. 2, is of untold value to anyone interested in Heard genealogy.
